Death plunge

This dramatic photo series was taken by Stanley Forman of the Boston Herald American during an attempted fifth story rescue of a young woman and child from a Boston apartment blaze Tuesday. As fireman Robert O'Neill reached for the ladder, the fire escape gave way, sending Diana Bryant, 19, and her goddaughter, Tiare Jones, 2, plunging to the ground. O'Neill pulled himself to safety, but Miss Bryant died after the fall. Toddler was reported in fair condition.

Drug experiments on GIs continuing?

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP) — Officials at Edgewood Arsenal declined comment this morning on a Washington Post report that chemical and drug experiments on servicemen are continuing here.

The newspaper quoted Dr. Van Sim, civilian medical director of the Army test facility and head of the research program, as saying, "We have a program and it is continuing.

Sim was unavailable for comment this morning, but was scheduled to appear at a 2 p.m. press conference at the Pentagon today. A spokesman at the Post Information Office said, "This office is not authorized to answer questions."

"We are testing all types of drugs and chemicals and will continue to do so because it is important to the national security of this country," Sim was quoted as telling the Post.

He said he turned over the names of 6,940 servicemen who have been involved in the tests to the House Armed Services Committee and military officials Tuesday.

The researcher told the Post that testing of LSD was halted by the Army in 1967 but that tests of about two dozen other drugs, ranging from alcohol to hallucenogens, is continuing.

Sim, who has been in charge of the civilian side of the research here since 1955, said some of the 6,940 servicemen on his list may have been involved only in minor types of exposure to chemicals.

Apollo crew's poised for final splashdown

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, commanding the last U.S. man in space mission for at least four years, said today he regrets the end of this era of space exploration but predicted a new age with the space shuttle.

The commander, on his fourth space trip, also expressed hope that the linkup last week between his Apollo and a Russian Soyuz ship will lead to more joint missions with the Soviets in the future.

Stafford spoke at a news conference that he, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton held in the orbiting Apollo on the day before they are to return to earth from history's first international space mission.

During the 32-minute televised news conference, they expressed delight at the success of their flight, said the mission was worth the money spent on it and forecast that American women will soon fly in space.

The astronauts even answered in Russian when a correspondent for the Soviet news agency TASS asked about the cooperation between cosmonauts and astronauts.

"We worked with the cosmonauts. We did experiments together. Now we are good friends," Brand replied. "I think our cooperation was very good."

The astronauts said the Apollo had performed so perfectly "it was as simple as riding a bicycle." Slayton jokingly said it was so error free his 91-year-old aunt in Wisconsin could have flown the mission.

For the first time, newsmen, assembled in an auditorium here, asked questions directly by radio to an orbiting spaceship. Astronauts have held news conferences on earlier space missions but each time a list of questions was submitted to Mission Control, which transmitted them.

Slayton, who was barred from space flights by a heart condition, said the flight experience "feels great. The only thing that upsets me is missing all this fun for the last 16 years.

"We have to come back tomorrow, and I'm not sure I'm looking forward to it," he said.

Slayton was one of the original Mercury astoronauts named in 1959 and the only one of them who had not flown before this mission.

Brand, also making his first flight, called it, "the greatest experience I've ever had."

He complained about the housekeeping problem, with everything floating about in weightlessness.

"We need a traffic cop up here to direct things," he said.

Asked if having women on board might help, Brand said, "I certainly think in the years to come we will have women in space."

He said the Apollo was not designed for women because it is too cramped and does not have proper facilitiies for a mixed crew, adding, "The first opportunity for women in space will be the shuttle."

Dad, son die in air collision

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Two victims of a midair collision between two light planes here have been identified as a Lancaster man and his son.

Officials said Howard W. Berry, 52, and his 21-year-old son, Joe, died Tuesday when the Cessna 180 the father was piloting collided with a Beechcraft Bonanza over the Miramar area.

Berry's plane crashed into an empty landfill and was destroyed.

The other pilot, James L. Haight, 50, of San Diego, managed to land safely at Gillespie Field in nearby El Cajon. Neither he nor his unidentified passenger suffered any injuries.

"I never thought I would make it," said Haight. "I just looked up and there it was. I pulled to the left, but I could not miss it," he said.

Haight said he was en route to Las Vegas on a pleasure trip when he struck the Cessna at about 4,500 feet.

Chino voters will decide year-around school issue

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Weary of the year-round school controversy, one valley school board has decided the issue should be put to a test of the people.

The Chino board admitted Tuesday its district has been "constant turmoil" over the program and took a first step Tuesday night toward placing the issue before the electorate.

Trustees scheduled a public hearing for July 29 to allow residents to speak on whether they want the YRS issue decided on a Nov. 4 ballot. An $8.5 million bond issue for school building needs already has been put on that ballot.

Board members, who unanimously favored allowing voters to decide on YRS, indicated the balloting would settle whether the district would operate a mandatory year-round or traditional program.

The district has faced criticism since it decided to operate a pilot YRS program in the 1973-74 school year. Last year, the program was expanded district-wide, and in April, with two new members added to the school board, YRS was made strictly optional.

But, as board member Pete VanderPoel indicated, the district has operated under a "barrage of criticism" since the optional year-round and traditional system was approved in April.

Citizens for Improved Education, the anti-year-round school group which elected two new board members in March, has been extremely critical of waiting lists which developed in the traditional system.

In fact, Gladys Briggs, CIE president and wife of board member Lyle Briggs, clashed with two board members again Tuesday over the waiting lists, and the fact an election was being called.

Although she favored the election, she charged two board members had decided it before the meeting. "Decisions are being made behind closed doors," she said. "We can't get a written decision from county counsel on waiting lists, but we received an opinion on this YRS election right away.

Mrs. Briggs said that VanderPoel told her he and trustee Al McCombs control board president Augustine Tapia. "Mr. Briggs and Ward, I was told, cannot expect to get Tapia's vote on anything."

VanderPoel denied Mrs. Brigg's contention, but she immediately charged he was lying.

Tapia, meanwhile, denied he was part of any "plot" against district programs.

McCombs claimed the first time he heard of any election plans was when VanderPoel visited his office earlier Tuesday. "Any suggestion of collusion beforehand is totally false," he said.

When Mrs. Briggs asked if she could pose another question, McCombs said her questions have been "irrational, emotional and pretty sad." Tapis banged the gavel, and she was not allowed another question.

As to the waiting lists, Supt. Royce Lapp admitted there are still 99 waiting on various school lists.

Ann Landers' 'ex' to marry

CHICAGO (AP) — Jules Lederer, the estranged husband of advice columnist Ann Landers plans to remarry in Great Britain in September, a Chicago columnist reported today.

Irv Kupcinet, a columnist for the Chicago Sun-Times, said the woman Lederer intends to marry is British but gave no further details.

Eppie Lederer, who under the name Ann Landers is the problem-solver for millions of newspaper readers, including the Progress Bulletin, announced in her column this month that she and her husband of 36 years would be divorced.

Kupcinet wrote that Lederer, a businessman, was unavailable for comment.

Hard landing, but alive

Parachutist leaps from N.Y. tower

NEW YORK (AP) — Owen J. Quinn said he wanted to dramatize the plight of the word's starving people. He had a plan.

On Tuesday, just as thousands in the financial district began pouring out of skycrapers to go home, Quinn took the elevator to the 78th floor of the 110-story World Trade Center's North Tower. He avoided security guards on the 78th floor, walked to the roof and put on a parachute.

At 4:45 p.m., the 34-year-old unemployed Queens construction worker plunged from the wind-swept roof of the building and landed safely amid a rush-hour crowd 1,350 feet below.

"When you get up there and look down, it's a heck of a city," Quinn told police and reporters just before he was taken to a hospital for psychiatric examination.

Quinn, who teaches skydiving, said later that his parachute had "hesitated" before opening and he had free-fallen 600 feet. He said the wind blew him into the side of the building as he descended and he suffered minor lacerations on his left leg. Otherwise, he was unhurt.

Quinn was taken from the plaza in a wheelchair and later was charged with criminal trespass, disorderly conduct and reckless endangerment, police said.

Few people on the ground saw the drop. But Gerry Lewinter, an employe of the State Department of Social Services on the 29th floor of the South Tower, said he had a good vantage from his window.

Fire escape collapse foils rescue

BOSTON (AP) — A young woman who was an arm's reach from the safety of a fire rescue ladder fell to her death Tuesday afternoon when the iron balcony she and her goddaughter were on collapsed and plunged five stories to the alley below.

A fire fighter who was helping them onto the ladder grabbed a ladder rung and pulled himself to safety.

Diana Bryant, 19, who was caring for her goddaughter while the child's mother was at work, died of multiple injuries at Massachusetts General Hospital about two hours after the fall.

Two-year-old Tiare Jones of the Roxbury section was reported in fair condition at New England Medical Center. Rescue workers said the child was suffering from cardiac arrest after the fall, but was revived by mouth-to-mouth breathing by the time she got to the hospital.

Fire fighter Robert O'Neill was on the roof of the flaming apartment building when he heard Miss Bryant screaming. He said she was "hysterical and threatening to jump" when he lowered himself to the balcony to assist her. Just as he reached out to grab the extension ladder from a fire truck below, the balcony collapsed.

Joe Green, a radio helicopter pilot for WBZ radio, saw Miss Bryant on the balcony and landed his craft on a nearby roof. He said he ran over and offered to assist O'Neill in the rescue.

A fire department spokesman said that for safety reasons, O'Neill awaited the ladder which was only a few feet away instead of passing an hysterical woman and child to a civilian.

Six fire fighters were overcome with smoke fighting the three alarm blaze. About a dozen residents of 127,129,131 Marlborough St. in the Back Bay section fled the buildings unharmed.

Court of Appeals rules against Occidental

Oil drilling gets another setback

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. has suffered another legal setback in its exploratory oil drilling project at Pacific Palisades.

A panel of three state Court of Appeal judges unanimously overturned a 1974 Superior Court decision granting Occidental drilling rights at the site.

The Superior Court ruling had exempted Occidental from obtaining a permit from the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission to drill at the site, along Pacific Coast Highway opposite Will Rogers State Beach.

But the appellate court said Tuesday that Occidental would have to obtain the permit, required by the 1972 state Coastal Conservation Act. The case was sent back to Superior Court for retrial.

The drilling project had already been effectively halted last December when the state Supreme Court ruled the Los Angeles City Council's approval of drilling was illegal.

The high court had said the councilmen failed to properly consider whether an environmental impact report was required for the experimental wells under the state's 1970 Environmental Quality Act.

No Oil, Inc., the conservationist group that filed both suits, argued that Occidental had not conducted such a study before it began drilling in January 1973.

In a related development, Los Angeles County supervisors voted Tuesday to conduct a feasibility study to purchase the 6½-acre site for use as a county parking lot.

"This would end the threat of oil drilling in that area," Supervisor James Hayes said. "This geologically unstable area has better potential for recreational use."

Occidental's obtaining of the site through a land-swap with the City of Los Angeles has been the object of controversy for several years.

The company has estimated that wells on the site could tap a field capable of producing 60 million barrels of oil.

Richard Newton appointed to Claremont council post

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night appointed Planning Commission Chairman Richard Newton to fill the council post vacated July 15 by Gene R. Block who moved from Claremont.

Mayor Bertye Smith announced the appointment at the start of the council meeting and explained that Newton's term of office would start Aug. 15 and be in effect until the next municipal election in March 1976. Newton will be seated at the Aug. 26 meeting.

At that time, a special election for the remaining two years of the term will be held on a combined ballot with contests for two seats up for regular four-year terms.

Mrs. Smith said that by doing this the city is saved the expense of a single special election.

Block had won a re-election to a four-year term in March 1974 and his term would not end until March 1978.

Mrs. Smith said that it is the council's opinion that Newton is extremely well-qualified and, based on his past performance, "he has proven his abilities and sincerity in serving in the best interests of the entire community."

Mrs. Smith said that the council's decision came after hours of review in executive sessions.

"We feel confident that our selection is a wise one and we are looking forward to having Dick as a part of our working council team," she said.

Newton said he was flattered by being appointed, and said it would be one more opportunity of working with the city.

"I enjoyed serving on the Planning Commission and am sorry I couldn't have been chairman longer," he said.

Newton said that serving on the council will cause him to look at the city on a "broader scope."

Newton probably will serve the shortest term ever for a Planning Commission chairman. He has wielded the gavel at one meeting so far, since fellow commissioners elected him chairman.

He has one more commission meeting left — that next Tuesday night when the commission has a crowded agenda of five public hearings.

Sycamore School auditorium has been reserved in case a big crowd attends and the meeting must be moved from the City Council chambers.

At its last meeting the council adopted an ordinance which allowed it to appoint a councilman temporarily.

Newton's rise to a City Council post has been rapid. Newton moved to Claremont seven years ago, and immediately became active in the community.

He served as co-chairman of the Claremont Fourth of July committee in 1970, a member of the police bond election committee in 1971, the Claremont Festival Committee in 1972, the Parks and Recreation Commission from 1970-72, and the Planning Commission from 1972 to the present. He was Parks and Recreation Commission chairman in 1971-72, and in June was elected chairman of the Planning Commission.

TO THE RESCUE

C. R. Taylor, a Pacific Gas & Electric trouble-shooter, rescues Mrs. Dolores Mendia's two-year-old cat, Tango, which had been stranded on a pole in San Francisco for two hours. Mrs. Mendia said she called the police who told her to call the fire department, who told her to call the humane society, who told her to call PG & E, who sent for Layton.

S. Viet's Ky (for $2,500) to tell how war was lost

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — For $2,500 an appearance, former South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky is hitting the lecture trail to tell Americans how the war was lost.

The dashing former jet fighter pilot spoke without pay Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce. But he said he has hired professional booking agents and from now on, it's $2,500 a shot.

Asked if he planned to use the money to help his fellow refugees, Ky smiled and said, "No, the money is my personal affair."

His agent hopes to book him for two or more engagements a week.

Still as dapper as he was in Saigon, Ky sports a mod hairstyle and a double-breasted blazer with military-style epaulets. A silver model of a jet is pinned to his lapel.

In addition to the nationwide tour, Ky said he is planning a book, "Twenty Years and Twenty Days," about South Vietnam from 1955 to 1975.

On Monday, Ky spoke at California State University at Fullerton and said he was pleased with the lack of heckling and hostility from the students.

"I was surprised," he said. "I expected the liberals and the antiwar elements to be there with negative attitudes, opposition and anger."

Ky said his proposed tour is possible because the American public has put the war behind it.

Previously Ky had said he might try to earn a living as a taxi driver or perhaps as a farmer in Arkansas.

As for how the South was lost, Ky told his audience Tuesday, "Both the Americans and the South Vietnamese committed many errors. Most of the time the politicians lied to the people...There was widespread corruption...bad South Vietnamese leadership...social injustice...bad economy."

He said he had warned American officials in 1965 not to begin massive bombing of North Vietnam. Ky said he told officials if they thought bombs would stop Hanoi, "then you know nothing of the North Vietnamese."

At Fullerton, Ky spoke of an underground resistance in South Vietnam and said he would like to return and take command of the guerrilla force, which he says numbers at least 12,000.

"I really would prefer to die gloriously on the battlefield than to live here in exile," he said. "I am 46 years old, old enough to accept the last sacrifice."

Governor to stay out of mansion

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's new governor's mansion will have solar-heated water, but there won't be anyone to turn on the faucet.

And there won't be any way to monitor the experimental energy-saving system.

The $1.3 million mansion is scheduled to be finished by the end of next month. But it remains destined for vacancy because Edmund Brown Jr., the state's 37-year-old bachelor governor, prefers a downtown apartment.

So the $20,000 investment in the solar water-heating system will have to wait. John C. Worsley, state architect, said Tuesday the system should pay for itself in about 12 years through electricity savings.

Brown, a Democrat, has called the 12,000-square-foot Spanish-style dwelling on a bluff overlooking the American River a "Taj Mahal," and he tried to have construction on it halted.

The residence, about 13 miles from the Capitol, was a favorite project of former Gov. Ronald Reagan, a Republican. Reagan and his family lived in a rented house after moving out of the official mansion downtown in 1967. He said the frame 1879 Victorian style house, in which Brown had lived when his father was governor, was a fire trap.

Brown says that by living in a $250-a-month apartment across the street from the Capitol, he can save the state $1.5 million over the next four years.

Brown dropped his effort to have construction halted because by the time he took office last January, the state's commitment was already $1 million.

A spokesman for Brown said government employes could use the residence for seminars.

Ferguson picked as new principal

Richard Ferguson was chosen on a 4-1 vote by the school board Tuesday night to succeed Terry L. Terril as Chino High School principal.

Ferguson is principal of Chino's Ramona Junior High School.

Board member Roy Ward voted against the appointment after trustees emerged from a two hour closed executive session. Ward's former campaign running mate, Lyle Briggs, made the motion to name Ferguson, and Pete VanderPoel seconded it.

Ward later said Ferguson is an "exceptionally qualified individual", but he objected to the process by which the new principal was selected. "It was cut and dried two days after his name was submitted, (by Supt. Royce Lapp.)"

"I will not be a rubber stamp board member," he declared.

VanderPoel had said trustees were seeking a principal who would be "strong" in the relationship between staff and administration. He indicated Ferguson could work with faculty members who were angry after Terril resigned in April, charging some teachers with causing trouble on the campus.

Ferguson, 39, said he anticipated no problems with teachers. "I know everyone up there," he added.

He served as director of activities for one year and assistant principal at Chino High for three years before becoming Ramona principal in 1973.

Ferguson has been employed by the Chino School District for 16 years, starting as a teacher-coach in 1959.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Whittier College and a master's from Cal State Los Angeles.

Ferguson and his wife, Donna, have two children, both attending local schools. His wife is a teacher at Marshall Elementary School in Chino.

Bombs called 'Sophisticated'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two bombs that caused $250,000 damage to the new highrise headquarters of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were highly sophisticated explosives, officials say.

"It was a high order explosive...one of the most powerful I've seen in my experience," John G. Krogman, western regional director of ATF, said Tuesday. He said authorities had not established the precise contents of the bombs.

Beauty queen sues pageant

PALO ALTO (AP) — The former Miss Santa Clara County has sued pageant officials for $200,000, claiming she was wrongfully forced to abdicate her beauty crown.

Rhonda Herrin, 19, said in her suit filed in Superior Court here Tuesday that officials took her title away on May 23, "wrongfully, without cause, in bad faith and with intent to injure" her, and thereby "exposed her to ridicule and contempt throughout the community."

Jim Torre, attorney for the county pageant, said that Miss Herrin's reign "was terminated by a unanimous vote of the 10-member committee," because she "failed to comply with rules and regulations." He declined to specify what rules were involved.

L.A. city council approves plan to buy Watts Towers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The City Council has tentatively approved a plan to buy the Watts Towers for $207,000, despite advice that the state would buy the Towers and lease them to the city for 50 years for free.

The council gave tentative approval to the purchase plan, 12-1, Tuesday as councilman Ernani Bernardi cast the negative vote. The plan will go to a second reading next Tuesday because the vote was not unanimous.

During debate on the plan an attorney for the Committee for Simon Rodia's Towers, comprised mainly of the owners of the Towers, argued that waiting for the state to buy the land would take too long.

Jack Levine said that the Committee had been negotiating with the city for 11 months and that if the city wants to gets its money back, it should enter into separate negotiations with the state.

Rodia, an immigrant Italian tile maker, worked on the eight towers for 33 years before his death in 1956. The two tallest stand 99 and 97 feet high. Built of iron rods, chickenwire and cement, the Towers are covered with with mosaics of seashells, broken crockery and glass.

State Assemblyman Leon Ralph, D-Los Angeles, says state money to purchase the towers would be derived from the State Historical Preservation Fund, but city legislative analyst Kenneth Spiker said money provided under the fund cannot be used to purchase city-owned land.

Spiker said his office would work with Ralph to get reimbursement or matching funds to make improvements on the property.

The money tentatively authorized by the city would be used for maintenance, restoration and parking facilities as well as purchase of the Towers.

CTA backs 'inadequate' compromise school bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Teachers Association is throwing its weight behind a compromise school aid bill.

The original bill, by Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, died in the final hours of last month's legislative session. It would have provided the public schools with $115 million inflation relief during fiscal year 1975-76, and $200 million in 197677. It would also have included language aimed at keeping the governor from vetoing any part of it.

The compromise is a oneyear bill providing $115 million, but including language permitting the governor to veto all but $88 million. The compromise would also require school districts to secure voter permission to raise anything over $88 million via property taxes.

Rodda says he expects the compromise to pass after the legislature reconvenes Aug. 4. Even so, he says its fate on Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk is uncertain. When discussing the original bill, Brown agreed to approve only $88 million, and imposed some restrictions.

The original bill failed by three votes to pass the Senate. Some backers blamed the neutral stance of the 145,000-member CTA, the state's largest teacher group.

That has changed. A CTA spokesman said Tuesday the organization has decided to endorse the bill, "inadequate as it is."

"It's the only ballgame in town, and we've got to take it because school districts are in real trouble," said Cal Rossi, CTA deputy executive director.

Other teacher groups have endorsed the compromise. But a major education lobby, the California School Boards Association, reaffirmed its opposition to the measure as inadequate.

"Our people have reached the point of no return, and if they have to cut any more it's not going to be because of a bill they supported."

Brooks said the CSBA is preparing a survey for Brown on the financial woes of schools under the present budget. He said that without more money, about 5,000 jobs will be lost to layoffs and attrition.

Rodda said the legislature should pass the compromise, but Brown "has not been encouraging" in conversations since the beginning of legislature's July recess.

Brown says he will demand new reforms from schools as a price for more money.

Brown hasn't gone into detail, but one demand which helped stall the bill last month was a 20 per cent cut in state per-pupil spending on rapidly growing summer school programs.

Rossi said CTA officials hope to talk to Brown soon about the summer school and aid issues.

"The governor obviously has some feelings about this and we want to be able to work with him," said Rossi.

"We hope that on reflection, he will see our case is sound. I hope we'll be able to keep schools afloat so when we talk reforms they'll be meaningful."

House sees gas crisis; Ford ready for it

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration says it is ready to deal with natural gas shortages next winter, while a House report predicts the situation will amount to an emergency.

The House Government Operations Committee, in a report Tuesday, warned that if predictions of the natural gas industry and gas users are accurate, "the natural gas shortage and resulting industrial, commercial and residential curtailments begin to assume the proportions of a national emergency."

It said that although federal agencies know which areas will be severely hit, they "are not prepared at this time with advance plans to cope with adverse effects on employment and industrial production."

But the Federal Energy Administration said it is making recommendations to President Ford to deal with the possible economic impact of the shortage.

Bruce Pasternack, the FEA's deputy assistant administrator for policy, acknowledged that gas shortages could have economic repercussions but said: "I think we're fully prepared to deal with the problem."

"I'm not convinced of the crisis proportions," he said. "We've got an absolutely fully coordinated effort."

The report predicted that curtailments could be 45 per cent greater than in previous years and alternate sources of fuel will most likely be unavailable.

"The natural gas emergency of 1975-76 represents an accelerating pattern which may become more severe in future years," it said. "No department, agency, or office of the executive branch exercised lead responsibility to coordinate preparation for the impending natural gas emergency."

Pasternack said an interagency organization, the Energy Research Council task force, would submit a draft proposal to Ford within 10 days and that a final report due Sept. 1 would assess all economic impacts of a gas shortage and possible government responses.

The committee, in its report, said the government "should have been hard at work long ago" in this area.

As a result of the government's failures, the committee warned, "the bicentennial months of November 1975 through April 1976 may very well conjure up realistic visions of Washington's discomfort at Valley Forge."

"The economic health and national security of the nation are endangered because of the potential adverse effects on employment and industrial production," it predicted.

Some signs of oil compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford expressed hope today he and Congress can "find an answer" on energy policy differences "in the next few days, a week."

With both the Democratic-controlled Congress and the Republican-controlled White House able to reject each other's energy programs, but unable to win approval for their own, the seven-month-old energy debate now faces an Aug. 31 expiration of oil price controls.

There were signs both sides were seeking a compromise.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said Tuesday that a sudden expiration of controls would send gasoline prices "through the roof."

At a Rose Garden ceremony, Ford said an energy compromise would permit Congress and the executive branch to work together.

The President spoke following a breakfast meeting with 87 House members. However, participants said energy questions were not discussed there. They said the topic was restoration of military aid to Turkey.

But, the President did, he noted in his Rose Garden remarks, spend two hours with bipartisan congressional leaders aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia Tuesday night trying "to find a solution to the impasse" over energy policy.

In welcoming representatives of the American Legion's Boys Nation, Ford said something must be done because, in the event of a new Arab oil embargo "we would be worse off now than we were in 1973."

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Majority Whip Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., told reporters today they enjoyed a social cruise with Ford on the Sequoia.

They also said there was "some talk about energy," including the possibility of a whole new bill and the chance of some agreement on a short extension of domestic oil price controls.

The administration feels it has to have some decision from the House on where it wants to set the oil price cap, said Albert. He believes the House will amend a Senate-passed bill calling for a straight six-month extension to a shorter period, perhaps three months.

Christina Onassis weds

'So happy for that girl,' says Jackie

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — "I'm so happy for that girl," Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis said after the wedding of Christina Onassis and Alexander Andreadis.

"They are a wonderful couple. There is a lot of happiness ahead for her after a great deal of sadness."

Christina, 24, and Andreadis, 30, heirs to two of the world's greatest fortunes, exchanged Greek Orthodox vows Tuesday night. The bride is heiress to the $1 billion shipping empire left by her father, Aristotle Onassis. The bridegroom is a member of one of Greece's wealthiest families.

Dressed in a white bridal gown, Christina told well-wishers outside the wedding chapel at Glyfada, a resort near here, "I'm extremely happy."

The crowd of a few hundred chanted: "Na zisete" — long life.

Andreadis beamed and said, "I met her in Athens several months ago and fell in love with her right away."

Relatives said the bridal couple left for the yacht Christina anchored off the Onassis-owned island of Scorpios. The tall, husky Andreadis told newsmen that he and his bride will live in Greece.

He also said "We don't intend uniting her ships with our banks," a reference to the Onassis shipping interests and the chain of banks in Greece set up by the Andreadis family. "The fortunes will not be merged."

The 20 relatives and friends at the wedding included John F. Kennedy Jr, son of Jacqueline and the late President John F. Kennedy. The President's widow and Onassis were married on Scorpios in 1968. Onassis died last march in Paris.

Christina was married in 1971 to Joseph Bolker, a Los Angeles, Calif., real estate broker more than twice her age. They were divorced nine months later.

The "great deal of sadness" to which Mrs. Onassis referred included the deaths of Christina's brother and parents. The brother, Alexander, died in a plane crash in 1973. Her mother, who had been divorced from Onassis, died in 1974.

Disabled vet aid hike OKd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has sent to the Senate for final action a bill that provides government benefit increases of 10 to 12 per cent for two million disabled veterans.

The bill, passed in the House by voice vote Tuesday, is more than double President Ford's request for five per cent increases, but there has been no indication of whether he will veto it.

A Senate vote is set for later this week.

The measure, which would become effective Aug. 1, is a compromise between different House and Senate bills passed earlier this session.

The bill also provides for a 12 per cent increase in the dependence and indemnity compensation paid widows of veterans who died of service-related injuries. The actual dollar increase for a widow depends on her husband's rank at time of death.

The veteran's increase is based on percentage of disability and on anatomical loss.

The bill also increases from $150 to $175 the annual clothing allowance for a veteran whose artificial limbs tend to wear out or tear apparel.

Sponsors of the bill say the increses are necessary to restore veterans' and widows' purchasng power lost as a result of inflation since the rates lere last adjusted in May 1974.

Ford issues warning in hope for Mideast peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said today the United States is earnestly seeking progress in easing Middle East tensions but cautioned, "it might not work."

Addressing delegates to the American Legion's annual Boys Nation in the White House Rose Garden, Ford said that "differences are still very serious" in the search for a new interim agreement between Egypt and Israel.

If the negotiations fail, he said, a new Middle East war could erupt with disastrous consequences for the region and for the oil-consuming nations that might be subjected to a new Arab embargo.

Meanwhile, Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz said his country expects the Ford administration to approve its $2.59 billion aid request if a Sinai settlement is reached with Egypt.

At the same time, the State Department said it would propose a scaled-down weapons package to Jordan. But King Hussein warned today in Amman that if Congress attempts to reduce the number of arms "we shall not hesitate to seek the weapons we need from other sources.

Such attempts "will entail adverse effects on U.S.-Jordanian relations altogether," he told the semi-official Amman newspaper Al Rai and added:

"We shall not accept any reduction in any quantity of arms Jordan has lately concluded agreements to obtain from the United States. Jordan is unswervingly determined not to leave its air space open for Israeli warplanes," he said.

Dinitz said in a television interview Tuesday night that Israel had not asked for, or received, a specific aid commitment while conducting Sinai negotiations with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

But, he said, "We assume the substantial portion of our military and economic request will be acted upon."

He said the administration must realize that Israel needs a sure defense in order to proceed from a Sinai accord to other negotiations with the Arabs.

President Ford has put Israel's aid request on ice, saying U.S. policy in the Middle East is "under reassessment." However, in the meantime, he has approved sale of Hawk antimissile batteries to Jordan.

This has stirred some opposition in Congress, which has until the end of the month to block the deal.

On Tuesday, the State Department promised to send the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a scaled-down weapons package for Jordan within 48 hours.

Rhodes, saying it is his expectation that a compromise will be worked out, predicted that Ford will offer another version of his plan to phase out existing oil price controls. "This time, Congress must not stand in the way," he declared.

House Speaker Carl Albert, describing the inability of Congress and the administration to reach a compromise, said Tuesday the chief snags involve how high to raise prices and how long it will take to do so.

The latest round in the standoff came Tuesday when the House voted 262 to 167 to kill Ford's gradual decontrol program that would have ended oil price controls over a 30-month period.

After the vote, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Congress and the President "have a duty to get together" to break the deadlock. A few hours later, Ford, Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb and a group of congressional leaders went on an evening cruise aboard the presidential yacht. Energy was among the issues discussed.

The administration program turned down by the House would have raised gasoline prices by 7 cents a gallon by the end of 1977, according to White House estimates. Democrat critics said it would have raised prices 15 cents a gallon.

2 thieves hit men's shop

Montclair police are searching for two men who grabbed an armful of suit coats from the men's clothing department of Montgomery Ward in the Montclair Plaza and fled Tuesday.

The suit coats, according to store officials, were valued from $100 to $130 each and bore the brand name of "Tannery."

One of the men was described as a Negro, 25 to 30, 6 feet 2, 165 pounds with a mustache and an Afro haircut. He had a six-inch scar on his face. The other man was described as a Caucasian with shoulder-length brown hair.

Puppet acts

A three act puppet show will be presented for children Thursday at the Pomona Public Library at 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The show is entitled "The Princess and the Pea," based on the Hans Christian Anderson fairy tale.

Other children's activities at the library this week include "Over the Rainbow Story Hour" for preschoolers on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.; "Magic Carpet Stories" for elementary ages on Wednesday at 4 p.m.; and part one of the film "Street of the Flower Boxes" on Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Israeli force clashes with Arabs in stab into Lebanon

By The Associated Press

An Israeli force stabbed into south Lebanon before dawn today hunting for terrorists and battled with Arab gunners. Seven Israeli troops and a Lebanese woman and child were reported wounded and at least six Arabs were taken back to Israel for questioning.

On the political front, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told parliament in Jerusalem that Egyptian refusal to extend the mandate of U.N. peacekeeping forces in Sinai "increases tension in the area."

But in Tel Aviv, reserve Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, minister of commerce and industry, said he believed Egypt had accepted Israel's views on a new interim agreement in the Sinai, under which Israel would retain the eastern reaches of the strategic Gidi and Mitla mountain passes.

A personal account by David Eisenhower

Julie unaware of the facts

NEW YORK (AP) — David Eisenhower says his wife Julie was unaware of many of the facts surrounding the Watergate scandal as she defended her father, President Richard M. Nixon, in the closing days of his presidency.

Eisenhower is quoted in the current issue of McCall's magazine as saying that in the face of continuing Watergate revelations, Nixon kept the scandal at a distance in family talk. He said Nixon spoke about it "in a kind of third-person way, as if it was something that was happening down the street."

As for Julie's public role, Eisenhower said: "She didn't have all the Watergate facts, but her defense of her father was human, not political. The only difference between us was that when it came to specifics, when certain questions cropped up in our public appearances that she didn't feel capable of handling, I was more able to because I had followed the hearings."

Eisenhower, grandson of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, recalled the days just before Nixon's resignation as an emotional period. He said the President sought reassurance rather than advice.

"There was not much question about what he would do," he said. "I don't think he wanted our advice. He was more interested in what we felt about him. He was also seeking reassurances from his friends that he hadn't let them down, that he would go back to private life with some sort of respect."

Eisenhower is attending law school in Washington and working this summer in a law firm. His wife had been earning $15,000 a year as assistant managing editor of the Saturday Evening Post until recently, but has reduced her schedule to part time as a contributing editor. The couple lives in a $400-a-month, two-bedroom apartment near the law school, McCall's reported.

Preventing 2nd Korean war stressed by Japan leader

TOKYO (AP) — The threat of another war in Korea and ways to prevent it are among the main subjects Prime Minister Takeo Miki says he wants to discuss with President Ford in Washington early next month.

"We should address ourselves to the eventuality of something very serious happening there," Miki said, citing reports of increasing tension on the Korean peninsula since the Communist takeover of South Vietnam.

"We must consider measures to be taken to prevent this," he told American reporters at an informal meeting prior to his Aug. 2 departure for a nine-day U.S. tour and meetings with Ford on Aug. 5-6.

Miki said nobody in the world, including the North and South Koreans, "wants to see the Korean peninsula embroiled again in armed hostilities . . . and we are duty bound to study ways and means of fulfilling this aspiration and translating it into reality."

An official announcement issued earlier said Miki and Ford would exchange views mainly on "security in northeast Asia including Korea, post-Indochina U.S. Asian policy and U.S. Japanese cooperation in the Asia-Pacific region."

Miki said there were no outstanding issues between the United States and Japan that required immediate solution — "unlike my previous visits" — and he was looking forward to fruitful discussions "in the very broad context of Asia and the whole world."

This will be the first top level meeting between Ford and Miki since they assumed their present offices. They had met previously, when Ford was vice president and Miki was deputy prime minister.

Miki said the "fluid" situation in Southeast Asia would be another major topic for discussion with Ford.

He said he did not necessarily subscribe to the theory that the nations of Southeast Asia were trying to break their ties with the United States following the fall of South Vietnam.

If anything, he said, the end of the war in Vietnam has helped the people of Southeast Asia to "take a fresh look and a more objective view of the need to cooperate with the United States.

"During the Vietnam war, the military aspects were overly emphasized. Now the countries of Southeast Asia have become aware of the dire need to increase the viability of their own countries and the need for furthering collaboration with the United States."

He said the end of the Vietnam war also has cleared the air between Japan and the United Sttes and "many of us can now look at U.S.-Japanese relations in a very cool headed and objective way without the emotional entanglements of the past. We realize the very great importance of cooperation between the United States and Japan."

He conceded that during the Vietnam war "some segments of the Japanese population were emotionally involved and aroused."

Family of LSD victim gets Ford apology; may not sue

WASHINGTON (AP) — A son of Dr. Frank Olson, who plunged to his death after being given LSD by the Central Intelligence Agency, says the family may not file suit against the CIA because of President Ford's personal apology to them.

"You can't conceive of how moving it was to hear him say he was outraged at this travesty of American history," Nils Olson said in a telephone interview from his Frederick, Md., home following a White House visit with Ford.

Nils, his brother Eric, their sister Mrs. Lisa Hayward and mother Alice spent about 17 minutes with the President. The White House said Ford apologized on behalf of the U.S. government for the circumstances of Olson's death.

The family previously had announced plans to file suit against the CIA for several million dollars. However, Nils Olson said there now is a good chance the suit will not be filed.

"We'll have to see how it goes," he added.

Nils Olson said the family had three concerns — that they have full access to any data available on the case, that they receive an apology and that they get some sort of financial settlement from the CIA.

Ford promised to make available information on the case and said he had asked the attorney general to meet with the Olsons' legal representatives "to discuss the claims they wish to assert against the CIA by reason of Dr. Olson's death," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen announced after the meeting.

"The President told us that he in no way wanted our meeting with him to prejudice our case against the CIA," Nils Olson said. He said he understood that the attorney general would discuss a financial settlement with the family's legal representatives.

And he said the family felt Ford's personal apology was adequate and that one would not be sought from the CIA. "Our feeling after coming out of the meeting is that he is to us kind of the manifestation of the will of the government," Nils Olson said.

Betsy Ross' remains to be removed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The remains of Betsy Ross, said to have sewn the first American flag at the request of Gen. George Washington, will be removed from a south Philadelphia cemetery and buried in the garden of Betsy Ross House, a tourist attraction in the city's colonial neighborhood.

A court petition by descendants of Betsy Ross asked that the remains, along with those of her third husband, be moved to a more "suitable" place near the small house where she is said to have sewn the first flag.

Mrs. Ross died in 1836 at the age of 84. She and her husband, Claypool, were originally buried in the Free Quaker Cemetery, unearthed in 1857 when that tract was abandoned, and moved to Mt. Moriah

50th anniversary of first edition of 'Mein Kamf'

A book by a former house painter and army corporal, published 50 years ago proved the herald of the cosmic tragedy that in turn would generate much of the world's current woes.

When the first of two volumes of Adolf Hilter's "Mein Kampf" — My Battle — appeared July 18, 1925, it got almost no attention outside Germany.

Inside Germany, it was destined to circulate in 597 editions, about 30 million copies. Millions of copies were eventually sold abroad.

The West German government today doesn't allow reprints. The book is little read and isn't seen on sale in Germany.

In 1933, Houghton Mifflin Co. brought out the first American edition, the same abridged version as published in London. Full editions appeared in the United States later and even today there remains a brisk market for it in hard cover and paperback, mostly among scholars, say the publishers.

But had Americans, British and French read "Mein Kampf" more attentively in the 1930s when Hitler's National Socialists pushed toward power, 20th century history could have been greatly different.

"Mein Kampf spelled out the race superiority theory by which Hitler expected Germany to conquer Europe and dominate the world. When Volume I appeared, Hitler, a war veteran of the Kaiser's imperial German army, had been out of Landsberg prison for six months. He had served less than a year of a five-year sentence for treason in the Nazi attempt to seize power in the Munich "beerhall putsch" of November 1923.

Hitler completed plans for the book in prison and would boast that Landsberg was "my college at state expense."

William S. Shirer, describing Hitler's rise in 'Berlin Diary,' wrote from Berlin that "much of what is going on and will go on could be learned by the outside world from 'Mein Kampf.'

"How many visiting butter-and-egg men have I told that the Nazi goal is domination. They laughed, but Hitler frankly admits it. He said in 'Mein Kampf': "A state which in an age of racial pollution devotes itself to cultivation of its best racial elements must some day become master of the earth.'"

Hitler talked incessantly to Western diplomats of peace, while to his party he talked of war. As the Nazi anthem put it, "Today we own Germany, tomorrow the whole world."

Der Fuehrer fanatically hated those he imagined "stabbed Germany in the back" by accepting the 1918 armistice and the subsequent Versailles treaty. He blamed the leaders of the postwar Weimar Republic and all Jews.

Eight years after "Mein Kampf" appeared, Hitler was chancellor and immediately began entrenching a savage dictatorship that brought the incredible holocaust in which 6 million Jews perished. He also launched World War II, which brought Hitlerism to a fiery end.

"In the battle of ideas in the world and in life, brutal force, applied ruthlessly and with determination, may produce decisive results," Hitler had written in "Mein Kampf."

The world wasn't listening then, and paid an awesome price.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, July 23, the 204th day of 1975. There are 161 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1914, Austria issued an ultimatum to Serbia after the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand. The dispute preceded the outbreak of the First World War.

On this date:

In 1588, an English army assembled at Tilbury on the Thames River to repel an invasion of England by the Spanish Armada.

In 1828, William Burt of Mount Vernon, Mich. received a patent for his "typographer." It may have been the first typewriter.

In 1889, in Richburg, Miss., John L. Sullivan beat Jake Kilrain in a 75-round bare knuckle fight for the world's heavyweight championship.

In 1945, Marshal Henri Petain was put on trial, charged with betraying France in World War II.

In 1952, General Mohamed Naguib seized power in Egypt.

In 1958, Queen Elizabeth named four women to the peerage. They became the first women to sit in Britain's House of Lords.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Senate confirmed Arthur Goldberg as United States representative at the United Nations after a brief, friendly hearing.

Five years ago: The British House of Commons was thrown into confusion when two tear gas bombs were thrown into the Chambers in London.

One year ago: The military rulers of Greece announced they would turn the nation back to civilian rule, and Constantine Caramanlis returned from selfimposed exile and was sworn in as Premier.

Today's birthdays: Former baseball star Don Drysdale is 39 years old. The one-time shortstop for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, Peewee Reese, is 56.

Thought for today: To teach is to learn — Japanese proverb.

Police urged to end slowdown, return to duties

But spokesman says police pay action to continue

The city's chief negotiator in the Pomona police pay dispute has called upon officers to end their slowdown pending a settlement of the wage fight, but a police spokesman said the action likely will continue.

"The city is requesting the Pomona Police Officers' Association to end all job actions and return to the duties they were all hired to perform," said attorney David G. Miller.

"The City Council is very concerned that the citizens of Pomona only receive the best possible law enforcement services."

Since July 1 Pomona officers have engaged in a general work slowdown and, during the past 11 days, many officers have reported sick and unavailable for duty.

City officials estimate that 100 of the department's 142 sworn officers have participated in the sick-in campaign.

"The blue flu job action has cost the taxpayers an estimated $8,000. To me, this is a misuse of public funds and an abuse of public trust," said Miller.

Richard V. Shaurette, president of the police association, responded by saying that officers would like to end the job action and added that they did not want to begin it in the first place. The city left them no alternative, he said.

Shaurette said that the city should be more concerned about the $9,000 a year he said Miller is being paid than about the $8,000 Miller says the so-called blue-flu campaign has cost.

The negotiations between the police and city have been deadlocked with the city offering police and 2.5 per cent salary increase. Police had been seeking a 20 per cent increase, but now say they will settle for parity with Pomona firemen.

If an agreement is reached on that basis, policemen would receive a small increase of not more than 1.5 per cent immediately, and receive an additional increase, along with firemen, of about 10 per cent next April.

The dispute is scheduled to go to advisory arbitration within a few days, although no date for the meeting has been confirmed.

If no agreement can be reached at that meeting, the normal processes for negotiations will have been exhausted.

Miller claimed that the city would have to add an additional 50 cents to the city's tax rate to meet the officers' demand for a 20 per cent increase.

"Such raise demands are absurd in view of the fact the Pomona Police Association members are the highest paid city police department in the San Gabriel Valley, Pomona Valley and Inland Empire regions," said Miller.

The city claimed last week that a 20 per cent increase would make Pomona officers the highest paid police in the country.

"The council has recognized the severe toll taken upon its citizenry by double digit inflation and a 12.2 per cent unemployment rate. In view of this, the council cannot justify the tax increase necessary to raise salaries 20 per cent," said Miller.

Miller criticized police for their failure to substantially reduce their salary demands during the negotiations, and said he is not optimistic about reaching a quick settlement of the dispute.

Shaurette disputed the claim that Pomona police are the highest paid in the San Gabriel Valley, Pomona Valley and Inland Empire areas. Pasadena officers receive higher pay, and there may be others, he said.

There is nothing Pomona police can do about the high unemployment rate, Shaurette said, and he added that double digit inflation has affected officers and their families as it has everyone else. He said the association has not demanded a flat 20 per pay raise but seeks a raise of 10 per cent now and 10 per cent April 1 of next year.

Shaurette said the association has offered to release its attorney and bargain directly with the City Council. He said it also has offered to submit the matter to binding arbitration. But he said, the city has refused both offers.

"We're still at an impasse," he said.

Motorcyclist hurt in crash

A 17-year-old Ontario youth was injured Tuesday evening when a motorcycle crashed into the side of a car on Eighth Street near Montrose Avenue in Upland.

Paul LeGrand Scott, 17, of 704 W. Granada Court, was listed in good condition this morning at San Antonio Community Hospital with multiple injuries.

Police said the youth was attempting to make a U-turn on Eighth Street when his motorcycle hit a car east bound on Eighth Street driven by Stephen Crouch Malcolm, 56, of 1066 E. Eighth St., Upland.

Malcolm was not injured.

Four arrested as $75,000 in heroin seized

Sheriff's narcotincs officers said they seized heroin with a street value of $75,000 Tuesday night with the arrest of four persons at an undisclosed La Puente address.

Those booked were Salvio Sanchez, 20, Manuela Lozano, 35, and two unidentified juvenile boys. All were booked on suspicion of possessing heroin for sale.

Deputies said they had been investigating the case for more than a month prior to the arrests. They said the seizure was tied in with the confiscation of three ounces of heroin earlier this month in two different areas. They accused the suspects of being major valley suppliers.

The heroin seized Tuesday weighed seven ounces, the investigators said, and most was pure.

17 L.V. policemen join teamsters in pay fight

Seventeen La Verne police officers, seeking to break a deadlock with the City Council over pay raises and other fringe benefits, joined the powerful Teamsters Union today.

The action makes the La Verne Police Department the second in the valley to become a member of a nationwide labor organization. Ontario, which has labor troubles of its own, is affiliated with the AFL-CIO. Policemen in Pomona, also in a salary dispute, are dealing through their own association.

The militant Teamsters Union with its two million members will serve the policemen through its Public Employes Division headquartered in Los Angeles. The division only recently organized the San Diego Policemen's Association.

Detective Charles Andreu, president of the La Verne Policemen's Association, said Teamster representatives will call for negotiations with City Manager George Caswell today.

"We have not been able to reach the council," he said. "Maybe the Teamsters can represent us better."

The policemen have been talking to the Teamsters for a week now,but their talks were only "exploratory" until Monday night when the council agreed to "meet and confer" with city employes, but refused to include money matters among the discussion items.

Andreu said he was interested in discussing money.

He said the $50 a month across-the-board pay raise offered by the council to all employes, a 30-day offer which expires at the end of the month, was "not satisfactory."

Andreu charged the council has refused to negotiate directly with its employes, delegating that matter to Caswell. He said Caswell had "no authority to engage in give-and-take bargaining."

"For years now we have been unable to reach the council," he contended. "We have never had any meaningful negotiations with the city."

What apparently angered the policemen even further Monday was the way the council handled their claim for safety equipment refunds over the past five years, which they said amounted to $40,000.

The council received and filed the claim without comment and without referring the item for any further action.

Andreu said the policemen are filing a damage suit against the city to recover that money.

Although there were some meetings between Teamsters representatives and other city groups this week, no one else has signed up with the union up to now.

The firemen, the management association and the rest of the city employes are still planning to have "meet and confer" sessions with the council, probably next month.

Marine, 19, jailed in probe of slaying

A 19-year-old U.S. Marine has been arrested by Chino police in connection with the shotgun death of a Chino man on July 3 in a feud between Chino and Pomona youth gangs.

Michael Lerma, stationed at Camp Pendleton, according to Chino police, was arrested Monday in his Pomona home by detectives.

Lerma became the third person arrested in connection with the death of Albert Martinez, 21, of Chino. Earlier Police arrested two 16-year-old juveniles in the shooting. Lerma is being held in Chino jail on suspicion of murder pending further investigation.

In the July 3 incident, Martinez was one of three Chinoans hit by shotgun blasts as they were driving in the area of Second and C streets. The shotgun fired by a number of other persons in a second car ripped through Martinez' car, hitting Martinez, Rodrigo Nava, 18, of Chino, and Martinez's younger brother Gilbert.

The Martinez brothers and Nava were rushed to Chino General Hospital for treatment. The older Martinez died a short time later with Nava and his brother later being released.

Police said after the Chino car was hit, it went out of control and crashed into the side of a home.

Police early in the investigation arrested a 20-year-old Pomona man on suspicion of murder, but he was later released.

New programs for autistic, handicapped are approved

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

To improve educational opportunities for children with learning difficulties, Pomona school board Tuesday night authorized the establishment of two new special education programs and the modification of a third.

The new programs will serve the physically handicapped and the autistic. The program being changed serves 50 children in special education classes at Lexington Elementary School.

Frances M. Livingston of Pomona, public relations chairman for the Southern California Occupational Therapy Association, Inc., and Dr. John Wilcox, Pomona pediatrician, urged the board to approve the new programs.

Mrs. Livingston, a former school board candidate, further urged the board to establish pilot projects for the visually handicapped, and preschool diagnostic and screening to identify developmental lags, deficiencies and behaviors that interfere with learning.

"These kinds of programs should receive high priority in future planning," she said.

Kenneth C. Cooper, director of pupil personnel services, said the new programs will be funded by the state, through average daily attendance (ADA) and special education grants, and will not require the use of district general fund monies.

The new programs, he continued, will augment existing programs offered handicapped children through mutual agreements with other districts (Chino and Ontario-Montclair).

Some 250 boys and girls in kindergarten through 12th grade have been identified as physically handicapped and will be given special help under one of the new programs.

These children have organic, orthopedic or congenital birth defects which hinder their educations, but are not serious enough to warrant enrolling them in special classes for the physically handicapped.

Because of their physical conditions, these children may miss some school, may not achieve to their potential because they are not up to par physically when they do attend, and may not be able to take part in physical activities, Cooper explained.

The new program will provide them adaptive physical education, supplemental education, rehabilitation counseling, vocational counseling, health services, special transportation and special equipment in addition to their regular school programs.

A $244,000 budget is anticipated in 1975-76 for this program which will be staffed by six nurses, two teachers, four instructional aides, two clerks and a typist.

Cooper said his department had worked a year identifying the children who will be served under this new program for the physically handicapped.

Six autistic children have been identified — all of elementary school age — and will be enrolled in one class as quickly as a qualified teacher is found, Cooper said. A $21,500 budget is anticipated for this program for 1975-76.

The autistic child is defined as one with severe disorders of communication and behavior whose disablity becomes manifest during the early developmental stages of childhood.

The disability is characterized by severe deficits in languate ability and behavior and lack of ability to relate appropriately to others. The autistic child has limited ability to understand, communicate, learn and participate in social relationships.

Fifty boys and girls have been enrolled in three classes for the educationally handicapped and the educable mentally retarded conducted at Lexington Elementary School which are being modified.

Through the board's action, the classes will be combined utilizing two adjoining rooms with a passageway to become a learning center as opposed to separated classrooms.

Police capture CIM inmate sought in cook's kidnaping

One of two California Institution for Men inmates sought for escape and the kidnaping of a prison cook since June 22 has been caught in Fresno after disarming three security guards and attempting to commandeer a car.

Dale Jennings, 38, and Thomas Matlock, 31, have been the object of a statewide search since their escape in June.

Jennings, according to Fresno police, was arrested Saturday evening and booked in jail for investigation of armed robbery, auto theft, assault with a deadly weapon, receiving stolen property and forgery.

He was also being held for Los Angeles police on suspicion of attempted murder and escape from prison.

Jennings and Matlock's crime spree began with the kidnaping of a CIM cook. The cook, according to prison authorities was confronted by the two inmates early in the morning June 22. At gunpoint the cook was forced to drive a meat truck out of the prison grounds and into Los Angeles. The cook was later found bound and gagged in a motel room.

Using the cook's credit card the men then rented a car in Hollywood and drove to Studio City on June 25. There, according to Los Angeles police, the escapees got into an argument with a security guard after asking directions. The argument ended with the security guard being shot several times by the suspects. At the time police believed Matlock to be wounded in the shootout.

Then Saturday, according to Fresno police, Jennings, disguised in a wig and thick glasses, attempted to purchase a pair of pants and other clothes with a stolen credit card at a Fresno store. The salesclerk became suspicious of the disguised man and called security guards.

According to Fresno Detective Bill Daniels, three security guards were escorting Jennings to their office for questioning when he suddenly broke loose, pulled a gun and disarmed them. Jennings then ran 1½ blocks to another shopping center where he ordered a motorist to drive him from the area.

When Jennings jumped into the motorist's rear seat, the motorist fled. The suspect fired several shots at the fleeing motorist, but missed. Daniels said Jennings got the car started and attempted to drive off. Other security guards in the area were alerted and saw him leaving. The guards fired several shots at the car and it went out of control, crashing into a brick wall. Jennings, slightly injured, was arrested.

Jennings, according to CIM officials, was paroled in May 1973 on forgery charges, but re-imprisoned eight months later after committing a robbery and assaulting another man with a weapon.

Matlock is still being sought by authorities and had been serving sentences for robbery in Arizona and California.

Man injured as car flips

A Los Serranos man was injured Tuesday when a car overturned on Rolling Ridge Road near Glenridge Drive, Los Serranos.

Gene Scarborough, 1537 Merced St., was taken to the Long Beach Naval Hospital and treated for a mild concussion and possible fractured left shoulder, said highway patrolmen.

He was a passenger in a car driven by James Holster, 14979 Sandlewood Lane, Chino. The car was going west on Rolling Ridge Road and went out of control on loose gravel. This possibly occurred when the driver braked to slow for a dip at the intersection, said officers. The vehicle rolled over one time.

Importance of space linkup

Before the first joint U.S.-Soviet space mission began there was quite a lot of snide talk about its being nothing more than an international public relations exercise. One famous political cartoonist went so far as to depict the Apollo and Soyuz linked by a briefcase labeled "Madison Avenue." The excitement generated by the mission itself has overshadowed such derisory comment, but there is still a residue of feeling that the undertaking had little substance.

That may be true, so far as any striking advances in space technology are concerned. In other respects, the mission is of great importance. Its significance springs from two factors.

First, the joint mission demonstrated conclusively that the two rival superpowers were capable of joining forces in a common enterprise serving their common interests. The implications of this are momentous. Global problems which now confront humanity — pollution, decline of finite resources, rapid population growth, the threat of nuclear war — demand intensive worldwide attention. The Apollo-Soyuz collaboration is a welcome augury of multinational, concerted effort to deal with such problems.

This mission on which the world's eyes were focused also is the first vital step in the transition from national to international space exploration. Rivalries will persist. That is not wholly a bad thing. But when American and Soviet spacemen shared the challenges and dangers of an orbital rendezvous, that heralded a time when humankind will jointly venture deep into the solar system and perhaps even beyond.

Basic principle timidly demeaned

When Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's overriding concern with foreign affairs makes him appear forgetful of a basic American principle, a reminder of that principle is in order. At risk of seeming presumptuous, we therefore note that in urging President Ford not to meet with Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Kissinger has done a disservice to the concept of free expression.

Solzhenitsyn, the world famous Russian author exiled for his stubborn condemnation of the Soviet government's repressive tactics, has lately set forth his doubts as to the value of U.S.-Soviet detente. He spoke in this vein at a Washington dinner in his honor given by the AFL-CIO — a dinner Mr. Ford declined to attend. Later Solzhenitsyn again attacked the policy of detente before a congressional audience at the Capitol.

As it happens, we agree with Kissinger's view that there is no viable alternative to detente with the Soviet government — that this policy offers the best hope of peace and world stability. We do not agree with Solzhenitsyn's oratory which in effect seems to demand a return of Cold War confrontation.

Whether one agrees or disagrees with Solzhenitsyn on detente is not, however, the point at issue. Kissinger's fears that the symbolic effect of Ford's seeing the great Soviet dissenter would harm our country seem unfounded. Any such effect would be outweighted by a vigorous assertion of the principle that in America we accord a hearing even to views with which we may disagree.

The question is whether the President of the United States should avoid this outspoken Soviet exile like the plague for fear of offending the Kremlin. We think decidedly not. The noble tradition of free speech calls for listening to what Solzhenitsyn has to say. The secretary of state and the President should glory in that tradition, not timidly demean it.

Dental millenium?

The dental millenium has not yet dawned. Anyone with a toothache had better pluck up his courage and go see a dentist. There is an air of millenium, though, about word that British scientists seem to be on the verge of producing an immunization against tooth decay.

Thus far, success has been confined to monkeys. Reportedly a vaccine developed at Britain's Royal College of Surgeons has completely prevented decay in these laboratory animals. This encourages hope that the vaccine may have the same effect on human beings.

Though that is far from assured, the work of the British scientists is most promising. They are far enough along to warrant speculation that perhaps we will soon have means of eliminating a disability which has afflicted human beings for thousands of years.

Mayor not entitled to vote?

The City of Pomona, as indicated in the City Charter, Article 1, Section 101, was organized and exists under the Constitution of the State of California.

The State of California is an inseparable part of the American Union, and the Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land.

Article IV, Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution states: The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government.

In the city of Pomona, the mayor is the executive branch and the City Council is the legislative branch of government. If the mayor who is the chief executive sits with the City Council and votes with the legislators, then they are in violation of separation of powers principle which is the basis of a republican form of government and which is guaranteed under the federal Constitution — Article IV, Section 4 which is binding upon the states and cities are sub-divisions of the state and are also bound by the federal constitution. The mayor and the councilmen have taken an oath to uphold the federal Constitution and the California Constitution admits it is the law of the land.

According to a copy of the minutes of the City Council meeting of September 11, 1973 and under item 24 — APPOINTMENT CITY ADMIN — we find that Mayor Lepire sat with the City Council and voted with them in the appointment of Jerrold R. Gonce as City Administrator.

This act is unlawful and Jerrold R. Gonce is unlawfully in office as city administrator. — Joseph G. Krane, Pomona.

A break for taxpayers

Dear Editor:

Last May the Pomona schools, according to broad publicity were desperately in need of a tax override of 94 cents per $100 assessed valuation. This was barely approved.

Now we find that this override was not necessary. However, a record budget of $29.3 million was approved, which included a nice 8½ per cent pay increase for employes and a nice reserve of $1.3 million for additional free spending.

Why is there no thought towards reducing the budget and giving the taxpayers a break? This is very seldom done. Maybe the taxpayer, when he pays his taxes next November, should deduct that 94 cents and place this amount in HIS reserve account.

The school tax rate should be reduced this coming year and not increased. Businesses and industries are compelled to reduce their operating expenses, why not the government?

State acts in drug war

WASHINGTON — The State Department's response to opium trafficking abroad has ranged from leaden apathy to blunt threats. A pro-U.S. dictator, for example, was menaced with an immediate $35 million aid cut-off if he didn't extradite a drug kingpin.

The astounded dictator, Paraguay's Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, stammered that cutting the aid would be like "an atomic explosion" to his impoverished land. But the State Department man on the scene, Asst. Secy. Nelson Gross, persisted and bullied him into submission.

The dope king, Augusta Ricord, was snatched from his luxurious life in a Paraguayan hoosegow, although Paraguayan courts had previously held the extradition was illegal. He was put on a plane to a grim U.S. prison and, as a result, Stroessner kept his $35 million.

The conventional diplomats in Foggy Bottom were so stunned at the audacious and probably unlawful threat that one official report inaccurately stated Gross had "threatened the head of state with nuclear extinction."

But the State Department is rarely so zealous, according to a suppressed staff study by a blue-ribbon commission. Some ambassadors refused to believe that Asian heroin ever even made its way to the United States.

The commission, whose members include Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D.-Mont., was set up to produce in-depth papers on U.S. foreign policy.

While most of the papers have been released, the one on the State Department's handling of narcotics abroad has been withheld both because it is late and it is "questionable in its conclusions," a commission spokesman said.

But another factor may be its unstinting criticism of the way the department has dealt with the drug problem. The study concluded that "the State Department is not likely to respond creatively and rapidly to (any) new foreign policy initiatives."

The snafu on drugs is important because once again the nation is being flooded with heroin. Turkish opium fields are blossoming and "skag" from the mountainous region of Laos, Thailand and Burma is being loaded on mules for eventual shipment to America.

The report indicates the State Department has no machinery even for dealing with its own "country team" members abroad and fights constantly with the Drug Enforcement Agency, the White House, the National Security Council and the CIA over antidrug tactics.

When President Nixon's White House team picked 60 major drug trafficking nations in 1971 for U.S. pressure, the State Department went at the job with all the zeal of octagenerians at a pillow fight.

The White House quickly "became disenchanted with the slowness and unimaginativeness of the State Department's response," according to the report.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "typically concentrates on a small number of policy issues. Narcotics control was not on his agenda." Narcotics, the report observed acidly, "is not the Cuban Missile Crisis."

To justify its do-nothing attitude, the State Department began grumbling about the narcotics agents attached to embassies abroad. The striped pants boys feared the agents would offend allies with talk about " 'those damn Turks' or 'those damn French,' poisoning our youth with heroin."

State also complained about the CIA, which issued reports lambasting corrupt narcotics police in Thailand, drug-trafficking officials in South America and bumbling "narcs" in Mexico.

Exasperated, the White House finally took matters in hand. Gross was named as the State Department drug chief and got some things accomplished by "persistent brute strength," as in Paraguay. But he left his job and was convicted of unrelated tax and witness suborning charges.

Then, the White House itself gamely if inexpertly jumped in.

"In Thailand, for example, the (White House) Domestic Council attempted to link drugs to insurgency aid." It also brought about "removal of an ambassador to a Latin American country in 1972 because he failed to take strong action . . ."

In Mexico, it tried to tie sterner police efforts against narcotics to U.S. assistance on Mexico's long-standing effort to develop more fresh water facilities.

But there was too much confusion and the Watergate debacle by 1973 had sapped the strength of the drug program at the White House. The study, written by a Nixon-era White House drug-fighter, Tom Peters, concludes:

"There is no greater failure in the White House system than letting a program deteriorate after the President has already claimed personal credit for success."

Footnote: Until 1973, the antidrug crusaders in the White House had a dream of change. Today, the manpower and the spirit have both gone at a time when a new heroin crisis threatens every America main street and school district.

Just in jest

According to a recent news item, the government has finally decided that the use of aerosol sprays is really not going to speed up the end of the world in any measurable degree. And thank goodness for that! It is a decision that possibly came just in the nick of time to save thousands of human lives that might otherwise be snuffed out by our ever increasing air pollution. For it has legalized the sale and distribution of a new product being packaged by an American firm — genuine mountain air packed in aerosol cans.

Refugees yet to meet U.S.

FORT INDIANTOWN GAP, PA. — (NEA) — The crowds of curious are gone now.

The Important People who were in attendance early on have since left for other pursuits. Now comes reality to this Vietnamese refugee camp, and with it almost loneliness. Only the homeless are still here, waiting, their faces pressed against America's windowglass, hoping someone will come to take them away.

Two months after the fall of Indochina, there is as yet no assurance the refugees will soon be taken away. Not all of them anyway. Though positive success has been made in relocating some 45,000 of the war immigrants, sponsorship applications have dwindled as the refugees have become yesterday's news. Ninety thousand orientals are still locked into depots throughout the nation, 14,000 of them here. There is no panic yet, nor should there be, but some are beginning to feel a sense of early desperation.

"I am a proud man," says a former Vietnamese naval captain, "but I would do anything to get out of here. There is an official named Grelly — spelled with two L's — he works for the U.S. government. Do you know him? Have you heard of him? He is my friend. We worked together in Saigon. Will you tell him I'm here, with my family? Maybe he can help us. Will you tell him?"

The desperation is only natural. The refugees are being kept in virtual ignorance of their fates and, at Indiantown anyway, in quarters that would worry anyone's imagination. Because of laws and convenience, the refugees are confined to ropedoff encampments, never to see anything of the country until they are permanently settled. Thus tempers are short, fights are frequent and many of the less-educated are beginning to wonder if Indiantown Gap is all there is to America. "I would like to go off base and look at a town," says a naval captain, "You do have towns, don't you?"

In the captain's case, the seclusion and lack of information is merely a rub. He has been in America previously, and his concern for his fate is more frustration than anxiety. Yet, he says, some of the less worldly refugees are developing genuine fears.

Will they be sold into bondage? Will they starve if they can't find work? Will they be thrown into prison if they cannot speak English? The captain says adult men weep in the night with anxiety, Buddhists are converting to Christianity in hopes of appealing more to U.S. interests, and mothers tell their children grab the leg of any visitor so the family will be recognized as loving and adoptable.

Many of these fears and reactions are perhaps unavoidable. But there is reason to believe, almost predictably, that the government which is helping the refugees has gotten so entangled in the mechanics of assistance that scarce attention is given the emotions of it. Hence a doctor providing inoculations in the clinic line here operates with robot efficiency but nary a smile or soft word. And when asked about the availability of recreation for refugees another official says coldly that "you can't worry about that with all these bodies to process — what do you want, softball?"

Softball, in fact, would be nice, And TV, and movies, and Kool Aid and Milky Ways. What the refugees need, almost as much as new homes, are things American. Many of them do not know how to operate flush toilets, the majority have never experienced air conditioning, almost none have stood at the checkout counter in a Safeway.

Processing efficiency has its place, but what is lacking here is orientation. Why should a man wait to arrive in Oklahoma to learn that he needs no visa to get there? Waiting is bad enough without doing it in the dark. In this nation we wash our clothes in machines, not rivers, and that's important information for a mother of eight.

Yet the word is not being passed at Indiantown Gap. Because the bureaucracy hasn't the time. Social Security numbers are provided, but not an explanation of what the devil they mean. "Our job," says a government guy, "is to process people, people."

And so it goes here. Fix the papers but nothing else. What a waste. There is a woman in camp who has heard of the Indians and asks about them in low whispers. One supposes she will worry about her hair until such time as her sponsor is found, if ever, until she is finally resettled.

And until she learns one distant day that as a point of historic accuracy it was the white man of America who did the real scalping.

Woman guard in CIM housing unit for men

According to a correctional officer, the California Institution for Men at Chino has placed on duty a woman guard at Pine Hall, a housing unit.

Pine Hall has an open toilet area at one end with a single toilet enclosed in a rest room fashion.

From her duty position this woman can observe the men at the toilets. She also makes bunk count and has seen completely nude inmates.

How degrading it must be for a man to have to use the toilet while a woman watches. The men are embarrassed and angry. This would seem to be a dangerous situation.

Have we reduced the male inmates of prisons in this state to the level of animals?

What kind of prison officials have we who permit practices that are completely without common decency? — M.P., San Dimas.

We referred your questions to Bertram S. Griggs, superintendent of CIM, who confirmed that female correctional officers are assigned to housing units.

At present, he said, 18 uniformed females are working at various jobs within the men's prison.

"This practice is not new or unique at CIM," he said. "There are females assigned to all of the Department of Corrections facilities. Conversely, men have been working in the housing units at the women's prison for five years."

He pointed out that the 1964 Civil Rights Act forbids discrimination in hiring.

"We have been adding female correctional officers on an ongoing basis and will continue to do so," he said.

Griggs added that the men are aware of the presence of the female officers and need not be observed nude on their bunks.

"As of this date, no complaints have been made to my office by the inmate population. The toilet areas are open and must be for security reasons."

He said the privacy of inmates is respected and all measures consistent with reasonable security have been considered when placing females in housing units.

I am enclosing copies of two money orders that I sent to Greenland Studios in Miami, Fla., one on Feb. 11 and the other on Feb. 13, for two plug-in antennae.

I sent one with the order form. Then I noticed I had failed to send enough money so two days later I sent a money order for the balance.

I didn't hear from Greenland Studios until May after I notified the company that the antennae hadn't come.

The people at Greenland told me to send in a copy of the money orders and a copy of the order form. I sent copies of the money orders and told them I no longer had a copy of the order form but I still haven't received my antennae. — E.T., Chino.

Our letter to Greenland Studios resulted in an apology to you and a promise to send the antennae. A week later you received them.

In response to the Sunday school class needing a radio for a missionary couple in Mexico, we have such a radio we will donate.

It is an RCA-Victor 7 band Strato-World Radio. It needs two knobs but is otherwise perfect. — Mr. and Mrs. B. W., Pomona.

The request came from Mrs. J. D. of Claremont, who asked for a Zenith 1000 Transoceanic radio of approximately 1960 vintage. She said the reception is better on "oldies" where the missionaries live and work.

You said the radio you offered and that was gratefully accepted by Mrs. J. D. and her Sunday School class was the RCA parallel of the specified Zenith.

The test will be made in Mexico.

Husband too bashful to write

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letter from the man with the bashful kidney who couldn't urinate in the presence of another person and the letter from the teenage girl who couldn't eat a bite of food in front of her boyfriend, I summoned the courage to write about a similar problem. It's my husband — to whom I've been married for 19 years. He cannot write his name legibly if anyone is watching.

I've had to sign for the house, the car, bank deposits and withdrawals — just about everything you can think of, including charge slips in department stores.

It all started fifteen years ago. Before that — no problem. What can be done about such a strange handicap? — Baffled X.

Dear X.: So far as I know, your husband's hang-up is unique. You've got one of a kind there, lady.

The only solution would be intensive therapy to learn what scared him 15 years ago. On the other hand — maybe you'd better leave well enough alone. Many wives would love to be in your spot — especially the ones with charge-account-crazy husbands.

Dear Ann Landers: After being divorced for two years, I became involved with my supervisor. I'm 45 and know how to get what I want. Art was having problems with his nutty wife and four mixed-up kids. He said I was the one bright spot in his life so I didn't feel guilty.

Last week I nearly collapsed when Art announced he had filed for divorce. I DON'T want to marry him. He won't have a dime left after his wife and her smart lawyer get through putting him through the wringer. I was looking for a fling, not a husband — who will be flat broke yet.

I need to work and want to keep my job but the rumors are flying so fast around here I might have to quit. The real crunch is that I don't know whether to tell Art to get lost and let him fire me, or play along and keep the lid on until his divorce is final. It could mean several extra months of employment if I kept quiet. The answer is probably clear to you but I can't see it. Advise me, please. — It's Over Robert Redford

Dear Miss Great Heart: How can you see ANYTHING with those dollar signs on your eyeballs? Your crass approach turns me off so completely I can scarcely be objective about the problem.

If you have a shred of decency, you'll shag your fanny out of that office as soon as possible. Since you know how to get what you want, I urge you to get another job. Immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I am very much in love with "Mr. D." and he's in love with me. But we have this problem. He has a wife and two children. "Mr. D." wants to marry me but he's afraid of what his parents will say.

Last week he lost his job. I make good money and have been helping him. You're smart and can read between the lines. I'm mad about the guy. Please advise me before I wig out. — Singing The Blues

Dear Singing: You don't have one problem — you have six. His wife, his two children, his parents and an unemployed married lover. My advice is to cool it, and the sooner the better. It's going nowhere.

Stars only as good as pusher?

Remember when children were being prodded into intellectual pursuits, such as piano and ballet?

Well, they're still being prodded, but nowadays it's activities like baton twirling and modeling. A school in the south is taking children as young as 2½ years and/or whenever they are potty trained. (I can see a kid sit on his baton and have it rust, but why would you have to be toilet trained to model?)

As I read the story, I said to my mother, "You see, here's a mother of a 10-year-old baton twirler who attacked a judge with her daughter's baton when the girl lost a contest. Had you been a little more aggressive, I might have been dancing today with Nureyev."

"You've got to be kidding," she said.

"A performer is only as forceful as her mother, I always say. Don't you think Shirley Temple had bad days when she cried, 'Please Mom, do I have to dance anymore? I just want to grow up and be ambassador to Ghana.' But her mother said, 'Shut up, Shirley, and shuffle.' She became a star!"

"As I remember," said Mother, "I enrolled you in a dance class in the hopes of introducing you to poise and grace."

"So I was shy and didn't like meeting new people."

"Face it! You were an awkward child."

"That's not true," I said, "I danced Swan Lake when I was 11."

"With all the grace of a wounded buffalo."

"Are you saying that I could not have excelled in baton twirling?"

"I am saying you were 15 before you could hand-feed yourself properly."

"Stars are not born, they are molded by mothers who refuse to accept defeat. Why do you think Gloria Connors attends every tennis match Jimmy plays in?"

"To carry chewing gum."

"You gave up on me, Mother. The talent was there just waiting to be nudged. Do you remember that talent show I entered at the PTA Follies where I sang, 'It's Only a Paper Moon'? When I lost, you should have personally grabbed the judge by the throat and made him change his decision in my favor."

"I couldn't do that," she said, "the judge was your father."

Some mothers just don't have the makings of a star.

Chest pain, not heart attack

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently, thinking I was having a heart attack, my husband rushed me to the hospital. We know that I have a heart condition, "beginning heart failure." I was given oxygen, put on the heart monitor, and an intravenous started promptly in the emergency room.

We were told later that I had not had a heart attack, but that I had gone into shock, probably because of severe chest pain. The cause of the pain was never determined, but a hiatal hernia was discovered by the X rays. Could you explain what is going on when a person is in shock?

Why was I kept in the intensive coronary care unit at the hospital on the heart monitor and on oxygen the whole time (four days)? They did say that my blood pressure had dropped to 50, then went too high.

DEAR READER — It is wise to put a patient with known heart disease who develops severe chest pain, in the hospital for observation. Sometimes it is not possible to tell if a patient has had a heart attack or not until after a period of observation and tests.

Shock can be caused from pain of any origin. Basically, shock is circulatory failure, where the heart fails to pump enough blood or the blood is not properly circulated. A simple faint is a mild form of shock, because blood is not circulated in sufficient amounts to the brain.

Obviously you needed treatment for shock, which is ample reason to have you in a coronary care unit and your circulation monitored.

Pain induces shock through reflex mechanisms that either inhibit the normal beating of the heart or tend to dilate the blood vessels, causing the blood pressure to fall. A simple needle stick can induce fainting as mild shock, or in rare cases cause a deeper form of shock; even death has been known to follow rather simple medical procedures in apparently healthy individuals.

I can't begin to tell you what caused your chest pain. It could have been caused by pain from a spasm of your food tube (esophagus) to the stomach. This can occur from the reflux of acid digestive juice into the esophagus from the stomach as part of the problem of hiatal hernia through the diaphragm. Proper care of hiatal hernia can minimize this problem.

You can have chest pain from the heart, the esophagus or from a sudden blood cot to the lungs or even from a tear in the aorta, the main artery from the heart to the rest of the body other than the lungs. There are many other causes as well.

It is important for anyone who develops sudden chest pain to have immediate medical attention. A large number of deaths from heart disease occur because medical help and facilities are not available soon enough. So, don't procrastinate, call your doctor or get help if you have sudden chest pain.

What people say

"Last year there were only four cases of paralysis, so the immunization program has been fantastically successful. The outcome of that is that many mothers today don't remember the problem. So, in a sense, success is one of our problems."
—Donald Berreth, of the Communicable Disease Center, on the need for children to receive polio vaccine.

"The government of America, the politicians of America, the people of America, are hooked. They are hooked on the philosophy of a chicken in every pot, two cars in every garage and the right to claim more chickens, larger pots and bigger, gas-guzzling cars . . . Well, let it be said today — it is time for America to get unhooked, to go the 'cold turkey route,' to adopt a new Politics of Survival and a new philosophy of governance based upon scarcity."
—Gov. Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin.

East's spade overcall is not recommended, but in any event, North-South would arrive at three notrump.

Malcolm Brachman of Dallas, who held the South cards, won the first trick in dummy and decided to attack clubs rather than hearts. Probably it would have been better technique to start the hearts and put in the 10 after East followed low, but with West holding the heart jack that play was not going to succeed.

The club attack appears hopeless also. Anyway Malcolm led a club to his ace, returned to dummy with a second spade and led a club toward his hand. East discarded a spade and Malcolm played his king.

At this point Malcolm made the sort of play that winners come up with on occasion.

He needed three heart tricks and proceeded to get them by leading his 10 of hearts!

West could have covered with the jack and still beaten the hand by winning a second heart and knocking out dummy's ace of diamonds but no one can blame West for ducking. When the 10 held it was a simple matter to cash the king of spaces, lead the queen of hearts and wind up with three spades, three hearts, two clubs, a diamond and a top scored.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine correspondent asks, "My grandfather tells me there was a time when all doubles were for business. Is he correct?"

The answer is that in the early days of auction bridge all doubles were for penalty. In 1915, Bryant McCampbell of St. Louis and Major C. L. Patton of New York, independently of one another, conceived the idea of using certain doubles for takeout. The idea had gained such widespread acceptance by 1925 that takeout doubles have always been used in contract.

Who really won Battle of Alamo

A pollster contends fewer than seven per cent of the grownups outside Texas in this country know who won the battle of the Alamo. Your family historian may not believe that. All right, ask that expert for the name of Admiral Dewey's victorious flagship in the battle wherein the Maine was sunk. Far fewer than 1 per cent can answer that one. It was the Olympia.

HIAWATHA

Q. "Was Hiawatha a real Indian?"

A. The character in Longfellow's poem was a spinoff of a real Indian named Hiawatha, a foxy fellow who did much for the Onondaga tribe with his political strategy and fancy oratory. He sold a lot of angry men on the theory that peace was better than war.

Q. "WHO WAS the baseball catcher that first planted himself directly behind the bat instead of 15 feet in back of home plate?"

A. Connie Mack.

Q. "HOW MANY quills on a porcupine!

A. Figure 30,000. That's about a third as many quills as hairs on the scalp of a redheaded woman.

DIPLOMA

Just about anybody who gets a diploma nowadays flattens it out in a frame. Our Language man finds this mildly curious inasmuch as "diploma" originally meant "fold in two." Documents carried by diplomats were so doubled over and sealed to hide their contents. And it was the fold in such a paper that gave it the name diploma.

JOSEPHINE was just the nickname that Napoleon gave his girlfriend. Her real name was Rose. Incidentally, it was erroneously reported that she was taller than Nappy. Research reveals she was only five feet tall while he was five feet six inches.

DOWN IN the Texas town of Del Rio, Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Boone for many years sold and serviced car batteries. The citizenry thereabouts noted with affection that her gingham dresses always had numerous little acid holes in them. His work clothes, too. She died in 1942, he in 1954. Chiseled into each of their tombstones is the exquisite bas relief replica of a car battery.

IN THE LAP OF LINCOLN — U.S. Park police stand by as an unidentified young man sits on the marble statue of Abraham Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial Tuesday. It took six policemen to convince him he should climb down and he came off fighting. Three officers required first aid. The lap climber was hospitalized for observation.

Hoping for seat on space shuttle

Unflown astronauts await new era

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo dreams of 16 unflown American astronauts evaporated long ago, but most expect to be the eagles of a dawning era in space.

The days of Apollo, a threeman spacecraft which never had enough seats to go around, will be gone forever when the current flight ends.

The 16 waited on the ground while others walked the moon, spent weeks in Skylab and last week shook hands in space with two Russians.

And there will be at least another four-year wait before any of the 16 can exchange the silver astronaut wings of the unflown for the gold of the space veteran.

But the space shuttle, a large, reusable airplane-like spacecraft, flies in 1979, and it'll provide tickets into space for the 16 and perhaps for scores of others.

"Everybody wants to fly, of course," says Robert L. Crippen, one of the 16. "But most of us recognized the situation long ago and knew we'd never fly on Apollo. You've either have had to live with it or left the program."

Of the 73 men named astronauts, only 43 have flown into space. Six died in accidents; eight resigned.

The other 16 have stuck it out, awaiting an open seat that will carry them up where no bird or eagle flies. The long wait has been tough for many of them. Most gave up promising careers in science, medicine or engineering to pursue the promise of space.

"They gave up a lot of years of research and some of those years are usually the most productive in a man's life," said one space official. "But, for one reason or another, they thought it was worth it. Space gets into your blood."

Crippen says the payoff will come with the shuttle.

"Most of us think the shuttle means that the work of space is coming of age," he said. "It won't be as dramatic as Apollo, but it's just as important."

Once the shuttle is flying, the economics of space will be changed. No more will rockets be used once and discarded. No more will satellites be abandoned in orbit, simply because of a simple failure.

Most scientists believe the reusable shuttle will cut the cost of space travel to a mere fraction of its present expense. It will be able to go into space and repair or recover malfunctioning satellites. And it will open the space frontier to persons without any special flying expertise.

It will also change the role of the astronaut and create new positions in space. Astronaut-pilots will, in effect, become only shuttle drivers. The real work of the mission — be it science, satellite repair or zero gravity experiments — will be performed by so-called payload specialists.

Pilot-astronauts, such as Crippen, are having a strong voice in the design of the shuttle. They have forced changes in instrumentation and cockpit design and helped in making decisions that will affect the American space program for a decade or more.

"The public never seems to understand that we don't spend all our time training for a space mission," said Crippen.

When the shuttle becomes operational, sometime in the early 1980s, experts believe the space fleet will make dozens of flights a year. And to handle the load, there'll be a new team of astronauts ready to join the action.

Right now, there are 33 active astronauts, but according to sources at least five are leaving soon.

This, plus the expected heavy schedule of flights, is compelling the space agency to start looking for new spacemen.

Okay, you men of Mercury, Gemini, Apollo and Skylab, make way for a new member of the team: spacewoman.

FREE AND EASY — Actress Katherine Hepburn relaxes in her Beverly Hills home in this photo released recently by the Ladies' Home Journal. Wearing the slacks and sandals she has been noted for over the years, long before they became fashionable, Miss Hepburn said, "I've dressed this way for 40 years just because I had brains enough to know that certain kinds of shoes are comfortable and keeping stockings up is uncomfortable."

'Good Evening'

Comedy at Shubert

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

"Good Evening," the insouciant satirical revue that opened Tuesday night at the Shubert Theater in Los Angeles, is made up of two highly gifted young British comedians making much ado about nothing.

Peter Cook and Dudley Moore are enormously talented comics, from high style to buffoonery, but their material, while frequently hilarious, doesn't reach their level of artistry. Oddly enough, they wrote the revue themselves.

Cook is tall, usually dignified, an Oxford donish type, great with the throwaway line, superb with straightfaced comedy. Moore is the volatile, spritely clown — subtle, adroit, intelligent, a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy. Nothing but great.

The thing that makes "Good Evening" just another jolly music hall turn instead of a brilliant evening of wit and wry comment is that Cook & Moore, writers, are not up to Cook & Moore, comedians. The talent is willing, but the script is weak.

This is not to say that "Good Evening" is not a good evening. It's a very funny evening, a steady undertow of chuckles and smiles topped by frequent breakers of belly laughter. But there are lulls and lows, and one leaves the theater thinking the show never really lived up to its potential.

The evening starts with a deliciously witty "Hello," in which two men, who think they know each other but aren't sure, meet casually and try to establish the non-existent relationship. Smashing comedy. Less successful, in spite of the unrehearsed breaking of a tea pot, is "On Location," with Moore lampooning senility.

Moore takes delightful digs at madrigal singers and German lieder singers; Cook mocks French tenors; they poke fun at a lot of people and things in the overlong "Soap Opera." The theater shakes with laughter when Moore, as a one-legged man, applies for the role of Tarzan in a film. The boys rang all the changes on that one.

My favorite is "The Gospel Truth," in which Cook is one of the shepherds watching the flocks near Bethlehem on That Night, and Moore is a reporter from the Bethlehem Star come to interview him for "an in-depth profile of Jesus."

"What was it like when the angel of the Lord appeared?" asks Cook. "Well, me and the lads were abiding in the field," says Moore, "though I really can't abide that field."

"Good Evening" is a lot of fun. If you'd like to spend an evening with a pair of ingratiating comics, do it.

Concert will feature 'Barber,' 'Music Man'

The Pomona Concert Band, conducted by founder-director Stan Selby, will present a program featuring the overture to "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini and selections from "The Music Man" in the bandshell of Ganesha Park at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The concert will open with Selby's "Pomona Centennial Fanfare." Other selections include "The Little Giant" by Moon; Grundman's "Fantasy on American Sailing Songs"; "Toccata for Band" by Erickson; Osser's "Italian Festival"; "W.M.B." by Hall; Anderson's "The Minstrel Boy" and Saint - Saens' "Marche Militaire Francaise."

Traditionally the program will include the National Anthem and "America the Beautiful."

This is the fourth concert of the band's 28th season. LeRoy Hughes is program commentator. Admission to all the concerts of the summer series is free.

$14,200 jackpot

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Darlene Del Bianco of Madera, Calif., is $14,200 richer today and all because of a quarter and a slot machine here.

Miss Del Bianco, 21, won that amount over the weekend as a jackpot from one of the onearmed bandits, a spokesman said.

The win came at a machine in Del Webb's Sahara Tahoe Hotel-Casino. It was the largest jackpot ever paid out at the hotel, the spokesman said.

Miss Del Bianco said she planned to put the money in the bank and save it.

A French-made film on natural childbirth called "The First Days of Life" will be shown at a meeting of the Pomona Valley-West End Right to Life League Thursday at 8 p.m. at Upland High School.

League Chairman John Stanley of Pomona described the film as important "because it identifies an unborn baby as a biological human being from the moment of conception. It deals with the earliest stages of fetal development and continues with later stages of pregnancy and the process of birth." The league works in areas of education and service. Paul Vadnais of Upland is chairman of the league's speakers bureau. Organizations wishing to use league speakers may call Vadnais at 982-7390.

The food stamps dilemma

Last week, the outgoing Los Angeles County grand jury issued a report stating the food stamp program should be abolished because of its susceptibility to fraud. The grand jury's request has no legal impact on the federal government but does act as a sounding board for governmental planners. . . . Ed.

Earl Butz

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

Earl Butz keeps saying his Agriculture Department should not be in the welfare business. But the courts keep ruling that he must upgrade the food stamp program and meet legally mandated assistance obligations.

The Agriculture Department hasn't exhausted its legal options in the latest court battle over food stamps, but it's uncertain whether the department will carry on the fight after a string of defeats in related cases.

If it appeals and loses — or if it drops the legal fight — the department (USDA) is faced with a complicated and very expensive task in following court orders to make food stamps a nutritionally sound program.

Over the past several years the department has been continually embroiled in court cases over food stamps. The department has lost most of them.

Last month the sharpest and most far-reaching legal attack yet was endorsed by the U.S. Circuit Court in Washington, which ordered the department to upgrade its food stamp allotment system.

Judge J.S. Wright

The court agreed with the Food Research and Action Center FRAC, a consumer advocacy group, that USDA has been in violation of the law in not assuring recipients are able to obtain a nutritious diet.

In a decision very critical of some USAD procedures, a three-judge panel gave the department until Oct. 10 to implement new rules. Some 19.6 million persons currently receive stamps, coupons purchased for a sliding discount based on income. The court said most recipients do not receive enough aid to buy what they need to eat.

"Congressional intent is frustrated if the program is administered so that a substantial number of eligible households do not receive sufficient coupons," wrote Judge J. Skelly Wright in the decision.

"USDA conceded that the present system results in ... substantially less than that necessary to purchase even the Economy Food Plan," the least expensive of five USDA family food plans.

"For a family that needs a loaf of bread, the offer of a slice is poor comfort."

John A. Harris, a USDA attorney, says the department may seek a rehearing of the case before the full U.S. Circuit Court, or may appeal to the Supreme Court. Immediate compliance seems unlikely unless the Department of Justice rejects attempts to push an appeal.

Richard Feltner

Court rebuffs like the June 12 order are not new to USDA.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz was the target of four suits before he released funds to implement the Women, Children and Infant (WIC) free food program in 1973.

For years, FRAC has been in courts all over the country suing local school boards in an effort to make USDA-subsidized school meal programs available.

In 1970, FRAC sued to force USDA to extend more assistance to the then-depressed Seattle area. The move won headlines when Japanese groups donated food to the city's sudden poor.

But most court action has centered around the food stamp program. Food stamp ranks swelled to nearly 20 million this spring as the nation's recession victims looked to the government for aid. The program was serving about 13 million in the years prior to the recession. Government experts estimate that as many as 40 million persons are eligible for the stamps.

Ron Pollock, director of the Food Research and Action Center, spends much of his time suing USDA to force extension of federal food assistance.

"The department does not have a very enlightened secretary," says Pollock. "He is not known for helping poor people."

Butz counters that social welfare programs are not his job. He wants to rid USDA of all food programs that are not part of the over-all department plan to keep farm prices high while increasing exports and expanding crop research. That, says Butz, is his job.

A nutritionist at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), who asked to remain anonymous, says of USDA officials: "They worry about moving food,

School reform: a theory or a reality?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s top education appointees are talking about reforms which could someday make every California school largely self-governing, with its own budget and academic plan.

Its chief author says the plan might allow a student to choose among schools stressing fundamentals, arts, sciences, languages, or an avante-garde approach, with parents evaluating the school's success at every step.

The radical proposal was described in an interview by Dr. Michael Kirst, a Stanford education professor and one of the Democratic governor's three appointees to the state Board of Education.

He and Brown's other two appointees to the board, Dr. John Pincus and Louis Honig Jr., are trying to come up with reforms that the governor can suggest to schools as a condition for more state aid.

After a $115-million school aid bill failed in the final hours of the legislative session last month, Brown said he would "raise some new demands for education" before approving more money.

He said Kirst, Pincus and Honig were working on some reforms.

Emphasizing that his plan is still in the idea stage and may never reach Brown's desk in its present form, Kirst went on to sketch the reforms he helped implement in Florida in 1972 as education adviser to Gov. Reubin Askew.

They include:

—State "block grants" of money to local schools, which decide individually how to spend it.

"If a school wants to trade two aides for a teacher or buy more material, it could do it," Kirst said. "Right now a lot of schools have to go through 10 layers of paperwork to buy some extra books." —Largely autonomous schools run by the principal with the help of an advisory council of parents, teachers and administrators, instead of what Kirst called the present "top-down" approach.

"Some of the schools may want more open classrooms and team teaching," he said. "Others want a very conservative, 3-R's approach. Some want stress on music and fine arts.

"There's no one way that's been proven best. Eventually parents or students should be able to choose among schools."

—Evaluation of each school's program, with program descriptions, budgets and test scores sent to each parent.

"One means of reform is a more aroused citizenry," Kirst said.

"The most important advocates of improved reading are probably the parents. There's not much one citizen can do about state or city scores, but information about one school can lead to a lot of complaining parents."

Kirst said he has talked with Brown in general about the idea, and hopes to give the governor a formal proposal that could be ready for the legislature next year.

But it is unlikely any of it will be ready by next month, he said.

Asked what Brown thought of the idea, Kirst said, "He understands it but just doesn't see how you could put it into state policy."

In his discussions of public schools, the governor has argued against "pumping more money into the machine," but has not put forward detailed suggestions of his own.

He did say this month that Early Childhood Education, the prize program of state schools chief Wilson Riles, may contain "the seeds of some basic reform."

Kirst said his plan has some similarities to ECE, which also stresses parent and teacher involvement in a flexible instruction program for grades kindergarten through three.

He said Riles' staff has appeared to be "on the same wavelength" in discussions.

Kirst said the plan has been generally popular in Florida, with some resistance from teachers' groups and school boards.

"Teacher organizations like central contracts with central districts," he said. "But maybe we could use the steel industry model, with some issues bargained at the central level and some at the local level."

Honig, a San Francisco schoolteacher, said fully autonomous schools were just one of several options. But he said he didn't think teachers opposed the idea of increasing the power and flexibility of individual schools.

"Single-shot curriculum reforms have not worked," he said. "They have not changed the process of education.

"The present system is hard to teach in. You don't have close comradeship. Teachers don't use other teachers as resources, and schools don't treat teachers or parents as persons with problem-solving ideas.

"I don't think it takes major changes in state law so much as changes in attitude to make districts become oriented toward local schools and give kids more choices. We should stay away from mandating alternatives."

Kirst said his plan would decrease state restrictions on schools.

"I think we've overregulated schools," he said. "A lot of the Education Code was built for a period of expansion, but we're in a period of steady-state enrollment. In Florida we repealed large parts of the state code."

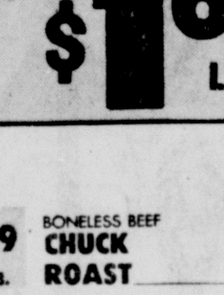
There are other advantages, Kirst said: greater ease in making statewide school financing more equitable, and in teaching students with language. He also said the Florida system has not proved expensive.

However, possible financial pitfalls for such a system in California are suggested by the experience of some districts which have tried to give students a choice among different kinds of schools.

In Berkeley, where a number of alternative schools serve a highly diversified population, the district faces a reported $5 million deficit.

San Jose's Alum Rock elementary district faces no such financial crisis for its federally funded project letting students choose among 24 schools, each offering a basic education and different specialities. But busing to the schools has been expensive.

But Pincus, a Rand Corp. researcher who describes himself as skeptical bout free-form alternative schools, said the experiments in flexibility indicate such a plan can work.



"I happen to be fairly conservative," he said. "You don't tear up the present system just because somebody happens to be a little dissatisfied.

"But bringing parents and the community into the process is important. In Alum Rock, the great majority of parents and teachers say they prefer it. There are good reports from Pasadena, where they have four high schools, including a fundamental school and an alternative school.

"It's the same reason we prefer to choose our own doctor or buy our own house. If we offer children both a basic education and the variety people need, they're likely to be more satisfied."

Grapefruit: the best harvest in years

California's summer grapefruit crop is the largest in 21 years, according to Sunkist Growers, Inc.

California is the only producer of summer grapefruit in the world.

Quality of the summer crop will be good, with smooth, blemish-free exteriors and good flavor. Sizes will run medium to large.

Much of the crop increase if due to new groves coming into production for the first time and newer groves seem to produce larger fruit.

For those who prefer ruby red or "pink" grapefruit, there will be adequate supplies, running about 30 per cent of the total crop. Balance of the crop will be honey whites. Grapefruit experts say there's no difference in flavor, but some people just prefer the pink meat.

GRAPEFRUIT BARBEQUED CHICKEN

1 frying chicken cut-up (about 2½ to 3 lb.)
3 tablespoons salad oil
3 California grapefruit
1 cup catsup
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne

Wash chicken and pat dry. Brown on both sides in 2 tablespoons oil. Place in shallow baking dish. Peel and section grapefruit over a bowl to retain ½ cup juice. Drain sections on paper towel and set aside. In medium saucepan, combine catsup, grapefruit juice, Worcestershire sauce, remaining 1 tablespoon oil, sugar, salt and cayenne. Bring to a boil; pour over chicken. Bake, uncovered at 375 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Baste chicken with pan drippings. Arrange grapefruit sections over chicken and continue baking for 10 more minutes, or until chicken is tender. Sauce may be used for over-the-coals barbeque, if desired.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Savor a big beef sukiyaki

Beef sukiyaki is known as a "friendship dish."

It's an attractive dramatic presentation, cooked and served at the table and shared by all. It can be done as easily for two as for more. A great party idea, the cooking proceeds as an orderly ritual with guests participating in the fun. The secret is to cook ingredients in small batches.

Its components of high protein beef, fresh vegetables and rich cooking broth make a complete, nutritious and delectable meal. It's meager in calories but abundant in flavor.

Since eye appeal is as important as taste in far eastern cuisine, always begin with a beautifully arranged platter of uniformly sliced ingredients. And for easy hostessing, have everything prepared for cooking guests are seated. The beef used here is eye of round — a lean, tender cut that makes perfect slices of solid beef. The vegetable selection includes easy to come by favorites — sliced yellow onions, green onions, shredded cabbage and watercress.

An electric skillet makes cooking at the table easy. Lightly saute the vegetables first, then add a mixture of sherry, soy sauce and broth to the pan. The beef is added last and cooks in the tasty broth until barely pink. Provide bowls for mixing raw egg with the flavorful cooking broth — it makes a delicious dipping broth for the cooked beef and vegetables. Hot steamed rice goes along with the entree and perfect dessert would be mandarin oranges sprinkled with candied ginger.

Beef and oriental cooking are popular with Californians. Happily, almost any cut of boneless beef sliced very thinly is appropriate for stir frying and other quick cooking methods. Round, chuck, brisket, flank and skirt steak are flavorful choices. Choose whichever beef cut is the best bargain of the day.

BEEF SUKIYAKI
(For Two)

¾ pound beef eye of round
½ head green cabbage
1 medium yellow onion
6 green onions
1 cup watercress, packed
¼ cup dry sherry
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ cup soy sauce
1 beef boullon cube
¼ cup hot water
¼ cup vegetable oil
2 eggs (optional)
Hot cooked rice

Slice beef as thinly as possible. Shred cabbage. Cut yellow onions lengthwise into very thin slices. Cut green onions into thirds and shred lengthwise. Discard thick stems from watercress. Mix sherry, sugar, soy sauce and bouillon cube dissolved in hot water. Heat oil in large skillet. Add cabbage and yellow onion to oil, keeping them separate in pan. Cook 5 minutes, turning with chopsticks as they cook. Add green onion. Cook 1 minute. Pour sherry mixture over all and heat to boiling. Add beef and watercress. Cook about 2 minutes. Portion beef and vegetables onto 2 plates. Ladle sauce into 2 bowls. Each person may add egg to sauce if desired. Use as dip for vegetables and beef. Accompany with rice. Makes 2 servings.

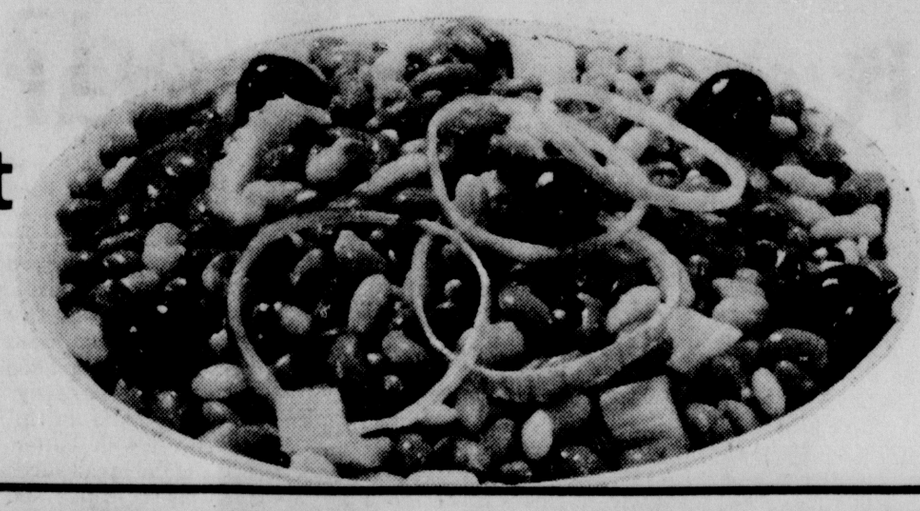
Triple bean salad for a summer treat



French, Italians, Spanish and Mexicans may think they have a corner on the bean market, but we Americans enjoy a similar reputation.

North to Boston for baked beans, southwest to Texas for chili con carne, south for blackeye peas, we're a nation of bean lovers.

Here's a chance to cash in on your family's favorites — try a triple bean salad.

Use pintos, great northerns. Any combination is delicious and nutritious; good for a hearty lunch or picnic supper.

Serve with cold sliced ham or turkey roll-ups, hot cornbread seasonsed with bacon and iced tea, and you've got a meal to cool that long, hot summer.

TRIPLE BEAN SALAD

- 1 can (17 oz.) pinto beans seasoned with pork
- 1 can (17 oz.) great northern beans seasoned with pork
- 1 can (17 oz.) blackeye peas seasoned with pork
- 1 can (4 oz.) pimiento, diced
- ½ cup thinly sliced onions
- 1 cup diced celery
- ½ cup salad oil
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground pepper
- ½ teaspoon sugar
- black olives

Wash and drain beans and blackeye peas. Toss with rest of ingredients. Garnish with black olives.

Succulent summer casseroles

Mix and match vegetables for a main dish casserole.

Try cooking vegetables together with an emphasis on taste, not calories. Use herbs and seasoning and broth mixes rather than butter or margarine for added flavor.

This casserole employs convenience foods, both frozen and packaged; fresh vegetables in season could be cooked the same way.

You might try beets, cabbage and onions; or green beans, tomatoes, corn and squash. Nutritionists emphasize the importance of vegetables in the daily diet.

Try highlighting the family menu with these mixed vegetable dishes. Serve this one with ham and cheese sandwiches and banana cream pudding for dessert.

CHEESY VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas
- 2 packages (10 oz. each) frozen broccoli
- 1 cup frozen small white onions (optional)
- 1 cup frozen sliced carrots
- 3 packets seasoning and broth
- 2/3 cup water
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
- 1 package instant mashed potatoes

Defrost frozen vegetables. In a greased 2-quart casserole, alternate layers of peas, carrots, broccoli and onions. Mix seasoning and broth with 2/3 cup water; pour over vegetables. Cover the top; bake at 350 degrees F. oven for 30 minutes. Prepare potatoes according to package directions. Mix grated cheese with potatoes. Pile mounds around top of casserole. Put back in oven until potatoes brown slightly.

Cranberries and seafood? Naturally!

Pleasures of summer are brightened by lightness of menus which are quick and easy to prepare.

Certainly tasteful salads take the lead in choosing a main course whether it be for a sun-lit lunch or dining by starlight.

Imagination and creativity in cranberry ingredients can spark salads offering a variety of new taste sensations. Such salads have great eye appeal as well. Consider serving your salads in different ways, too, in unusual containers rather than the traditional wooden bowl.

Salad in a basket would be novel and particularly pretty. To use a basket, either place a slightly smaller glass or plastic container in it, or simply line the sides and bottom with heavy foil and then cover it with cabbage or lettuce leaves.

For a large crowd, use a punch bowl or an inexpensive plastic utility bowl which you can decorate with colorful cutouts of vegetables or flowers.

"Cranberry Sweet 'N Sour Seafood Salad" combines a variety of seafoods with diced potatoes, celery, scallions, and carrots mixed with a piquant dressing of sour cream and cranberry cocktail.

Serve your seafood salad in a giant sea shell or in individual, smaller shells. Extra dressing can be handy in another shell. To round out your menu, bake some pre-prepared biscuits and serve an icy-bright drink. "Cucumber Cool Cranapple Punch" served in a pitcher subtly coordinates in taste with this salad. It combines cranberry apple drink with chopped cucumber, orange juice, and quinine water over ice. For a pretty, edible garnish place a cucumber spear in each glass.

"Chinaberry Salad" has an exotic flair, and makes practical use of either poultry or meat leftovers. It combines diced ham or chicken, pineapple tidbits, Chinese vegetables, celery and scallions. Just before serving, mix these ingredients with a tangy combination of Italian salad dressing and jellied cranberry sauce. A basekt of soft rolls or sesame breadsticks will round out this course nicely.

No repertoire of salad making would be complete without one made with fresh fruits. A real winner is "Fruitful Creamberry Salad" which combines oranges, grapefuit, strawberries, cantaloupe, and grapes. It is gently mixed with a dressing of cream, grated orange rind, frozen lemonade and cranberry-orange relish. This salad would be handsome in a glass or plastic bowl, or even better in a scopped out watermelon, or individually served in small melon shells. Accompany your fruit salad with delectable triangle "Raisin Cranwiches" made with raisin bread, butter and whole berry cranberry sauce.

CRANBERRY SWEET 'N SOUR SEAFOOD SALAD

- 4 cups cooked flaked fish or diced shellfish, flounder, haddock, halibut, salmon, crab, lobster, scallops, shrimp
- 6 cups cooked cubed potatoes
- 1 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 bunch scallions, sliced
- 1 carrot, shredded
- 1 cup (½ pint) sour cream
- ½ cup Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail
- Salt and pepper
- 1 can (8 ounces) Ocean Spray jellied cranberry sauce, cut into ½ inch cubes

In a large bowl mix fish, potatoes, celery, scallions, and carrots. Combine sour cream and cranberry juice in another bowl until smooth. Chill until ready to serve. When ready to serve mix salad with salad dressing. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Top each serving with a few cubes of cranberry jellied sauce.

CHINABERRY SALAD

- 4 cups diced cooked chicken or ham
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 cup pineapple tidbits, drained
- 1 can (1 pound) Chinese vegetables, drained
- 1 bunch scallions, sliced
- Lettuce or cabbage leaves
- 1 can (8 ounces) Ocean Spray jellied cranberry sauce
- 1 can prepared Italian salad dressing

In a large bowl mix chicken, celery, pineapple, Chinese vegetables and scallions. Spoon mixture into a salad bowl lined with lettuce leaves. In a small bowl combine cranberry sauce and salad dressing until smooth and well blended. Pour dressing over salad and toss gently to coat all particles.

FRUITFUL CREAMBERRY SALAD AND RAISIN CRANWICHES

Salad:

- 4 navel oranges, peeled and sliced
- 1 grapefruit, peeled and sectioned
- 1 pint strawberries, hulled and halved
- 1 cantaloupe, peeled, seeded and cut into 1 inch cubes
- 2 cups seedless green grapes
- Lettuce leaves
- 1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream, whipped
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- ¼ cup frozen concentrated lemonade, undiluted
- ½ cup Ocean Spray cranberry-orange relish

Sandwiches:

- 16 slices raisin bread
- Soft butter or margarine
- 1 can (8 ounces) Ocean Spray whole berry cranberry sauce

Mix all fruits gently and spoon into a salad bowl lined with lettuce leaves. Chill until ready to serve. In a bowl mix whipped cream, orange rind, lemonade and relish, for dressing. Serve fruit salad on serving plates and top with salad dressing. Spread one side of all bread slices with butter. Spread 8 of the bread slices with cranberry sauce and top with remaining slices buttered side down. Cut sandwiches into triangles and serve with salad.

Meany: Grumbling in the ranks but still labor's boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tan is from the Burning Tree Country Club golf course. It is not, as some Young Turks in the labor movement would have you believe, rust.

George Meany, who will be 81 on Aug. 16, is, in his 20th year as president of the AFL-CIO, as energetically as ever pursuing his dual role as both labor's irresistible force and immovable object.

The stubby forefinger jabs a congressman's lapel with the same gusto as always in putting over a point, or pernt; the glower across a conference table is as icy and menacing as ever an adversary remembers; the South Bronx accent is undiluted and the ability to snort and growl and no-comment is undiminished by either age or use. "Yeah, Meany's senile," said a loyal union leader, of which there are still many, "senile like a fox."

All who heard Meany's recent detailed program for federal action to end unemployment know that on such lofty national matters labor still speaks with a single voice — his.

But on lower levels of the Meany bailiwick there are signs that the House of Labor, while not divided, is growing restive under its dour old godfather.

As one example, more and more of the AFL-CIO's 110 affiliated unions are collecting and spending political funds on their own instead of forwarding them to Meany's Committee on Political Education (COPE). Last year only a third of the unions met their COPE quotas. Another third anted up less than half their dues.

Not only that, union leaders seem more willing of late to risk Meany's well-known ire by ignoring his views.

He still puts in a full day . . . he goes home in a chauffeured Cadillac. Except he usually sits up front with the driver.

Last March, when Meany split with his onetime favorite, Sen. Henry Jackson, and called him "the kind of friend labor doesn't need," the wealthy Marine Engineers Union went right ahead and honored Jackson at a fancy dinner.

"It doesn't bother me," Meany said, firing up a

It would be hard to find a stronger creature in the world than the duck-billed platypus that lives in Australia and Tasmania.

What makes this "impossible" creature so odd is that it has a bill like a duck, where most other mammals have noses and lips. It has the soft, thick fur of a mole, and a paddle-shaped tail like a beaver.

It has webbed feet, too, and it lays eggs and hatches them like a chicken. But after the eggs have hatched, the mother platypus nurses her babies with milk as do other mammals.

A fully grown duckbill may be nearly two feet long counting its tail, and weigh 4 pounds.

This shy creature spends most of the day hiding in a grass-lined den, deep in some mud bank.

It comes out at night to hunt for worms, snails, and other small water creatures which it digs up from the muddy stream bottom with its rubbery bill.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Meany

huge green cigar. "We have 14 million members who can do as they please politically. I don't tell anybody how to vote."

He shifted his ample bottom in the chair and added thoughtfully, "I don't even tell my wife how to vote. She'd tell me to go to hell if I told her how to vote."

Now there's a scene worth pondering. Can you imagine anybody telling William George Meany to go to hell?

When someone out of favor comes in his presence the room chills. His staff members know the symptoms. If they see the heavy lids narrow over the pale gray eyes behind the thick-rimmed glasses, "Somebody's gonna get it. Cold is what he gets," said an aide.

Keeping George Meany's feathers smoothed is deemed as necessary to a comfortable life in Washington as air conditioning.

Lyndon Johnson even took the trouble to walk across Lafayette Park to Meany's office to deliver a framed display of 100 pens representing 100 labor-backed bills he signed and to tell Meany's assembled flock that their shepherd had visited the Oval Office 49 times and talked by phone 82 times. And that gushing gesture was made a week before the President left office.

Others might not have kept as meticulous a dance card, but it is a fact that every president since Franklin Roosevelt, all of whom Mr. Labor has known personally, as well as lesser politicoes too numerous to count, have at one time or another wallowed in the courtship of George Meany.

How come? Ask 10 labor bosses and 10 pols the nature of Meany's power and you get 20 answers, mostly different, all vague.

George Meany can't call a mighty union out on strike. He has no such power base.

George Meany can't, as he admitted, tell his folks how to vote. After the last presidential election 71 per cent of union members polled said his opinion had not influenced them.

George Meany can't compel a solid labor front. When he withheld his AFL-CIO benediction from both 1972 candidates, 35 national unions not only endorsed George McGovern anyhow but raised $250,000 for his campaign.

And how to explain his unyielding hold on the AFL-CIO since he negotiated the great labor merger in 1955?

Under Meany's high priesthood the temple of labor has been rocked by such heresies as his opinion that the strike is an outdated weapon; union membership has dwindled from about 35 per cent of the nonfarm work force to about 27 per cent; and, whereas Samuel Gompers, in Meany's own memory, ended every speech with the ringing cry, "Organize! Organize! Organize!", what George Meany had to say on the subject was this:

"Why should we worry about organizing groups of people who do not appear to want to be organized? If they prefer to have others speak for them and make the decisions which effect their lives, without effective participation on their part, that is their right."

That is what Mr. Labor said, to the dismay of more than a few young unionists who, glancing at the 48 per cent union membership in Britain, or the 80 per cent in Sweden, believe labor's crusading days in the U.S. are a long way from over.

Yet not since the death of Walter Reuther and the demise of Jimmy Hoffa has anyone risen from labor's ranks to seriously challenge Meany as labor's No. 1 spokesman.

All those varying views of politicians and labor leaders on the nature of Meany's power lead to at least one conclusion. Plain-spoken George is among the last of a breed of public men skilled by training and instinct in that oldest of political arts, the deal.

"He practices the politics of his generation, and they still work," said one AFL-CIO executive council member who has had his feuds with the boss and does not underestimate him.

"He was weaned on Tammany Hall politics. He's comfortable with guys like Mayor Daley of Chicago. He knows how to do favors in return for favors. He knows where the levers are and how to work them. And politicians know he will keep his mouth shut."

Thus George Meany has provided labor with something no amount of hortative thunder ever did — legislation. Those 100 pens represent practical accomplishment.

He might have been less than effective in opening craft unions to blacks, for example, but he knew how to swing powerful weight behind a civil rights bill in Congress.

It can't be said, however, that he does not also act out of principles deeply held. When two black unionists were refused rooms at a Houston hotel at the 1949 AFL convention, Meany took one under each arm, marched to the desk and said, "Either they get in or we all get out." They got in. His outspoken anti-Communism is equally genuine. Meany may be labor's most devout capitalist.

George Meany can sing "Solidarity Forever" with the best of them and knows the value of a union card. At 22, with his father dead and his elder brother injured, his union wage of $49.50 a week as a New York plumber was the chief support of his grandfather, mother and seven younger brothers and sisters.

But his rise to the top of labor's heap resulted from neither the ideology of a Reuther nor the polemics of a Lewis. When he became business agent for his Bronx local — his father had been president — and got a taste of the administration of labor as opposed to the doing of it, he dropped his pipe wrench for good.

In 1935 he went doggedly after, and won, the chairmanship of his state federation of labor and in that single year pushed 72 labor bills through the legislature. Never mind that he never trod a picket line, negotiated a contract, or got his cloth cap stove in by company goons. Labor needed his kind of hero, too, and in four years Meany was summoned to Washington as the AFL secretary-treasurer.

Labor's need for somebody in Washington to oil the machinery has never diminished, only increased.

The ways of George Meany are much easier to fathom as a private citizen than as labor's boss of bosses.

He still puts in a full day, at the end of which, like any other $90,000-a-year executive, he goes home in a chauffeured Cadillac. Except he usually sits up front with the driver.

Once he arrives at the seven-room red brick house in Bethesda, where he has lived for 30 years, he becomes the private George Meany and the change is remarkable. One disturbs him at home at one's peril.

The private George Meany presides over a patio grill, dabbles at an easel, gardens, golfs, and often after supper accompanies himself at the organ with a favorite Irish come-all-ye.

He's a pushover for his 14 grandchildren — stocks a closet full of toys. One granddaughter, Ellen Lutz, at age 12 wrote a letter to the editor of The Washington Post scolding him for making her sweet granddaddy look so nasty in the cartoons.

Ellen's view of the private Meany is not surprising. When her grandfather became AFL president in 1952 the artist hired to paint his official portrait wound up in a battle between Meany's daughter and his secretary.

The daughter inspected the picture and said she had never seen her father look so solemn. It was changed. The secretary said no, she had never seen him look so frivolous. Changed again. The upshot was two pictures: one for the office, with the corners of the mouth turned down; one for home, with them turned up.

Either way, it remains one of the most easily recognized.

Ole George jus' layin' low for a spell

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George Wallace, like Brer Fox, is layin' low these days. There's a briar patch out there he'd as soon not get into just now.

Democratic party officials denounce his candidacy, polls cite his slipping popularity, state legislators pushing his bills wait in vain for his support, reporters prowl his home turf digging up allegations of lack of leadership, and fellow governors question his physical stamina.

Wallace, all the while, stays in his family quarters at the governor's mansion nursing a broken leg and a bruised image.

While other declared and undeclared 1976 presidential candidates covet every inch of newsprint they can get, the man with a message for the masses turns away reporters by the droves.

What about all those charges of neglect and poor administration? Wouldn't he like to answer them?

He would not. But after 10 days of badgering he consented to anyhow, sort of, and by phone rather than in person.

"Just asking the question is insulting to the people of Alabama and I resent that," he said. "The people of this state are just as intelligent and have just as much knowledge about government as the people of any state in the union.

"They elected me three times, which was unprecedented in this state, and elected my first wife once, which was four straight administrations. They elect me over and over again. Why do they do that if I'm such a bad governor? That in itself ought to answer all those questions."

Maybe, but apparently not to the satisfaction of all.

Wallace explains his reluctance to be interviewed by saying it wouldn't be fair to accommodate a national reporter after turning down Alabama reporters whom, he says, he hasn't been able to see because he's been too busy.

The Alabama press, however, has not questioned Wallace's availability for interviews so much as to wonder just what it is he's been busy doing, running for president or running Alabama.

He hasn't been seen or heard from much this year down at the capitol, even when Wallace-backed bills go down the drain in the legislature. At one recent special session his entire pacakge of eight bills, all dealing with utilities, died without a word from George.

Yet, say the local papers, the governor somehow finds the time for lengthy visits at home with out-of-state politicos.

His visits to the capitol have become so infrequent, in fact, that when he does go to the office he finds a good many strangers there. (His staff has grown in recent months, prompting wisecracks in Montgomery about his "sprawling bureaucracy.")

At a picture-taking ceremony not long ago Wallace confronted an unfamiliar face.

"How are you, honey?"

"Fine, governor. I work for you."

"Oh, yes. Good to see you again."

Wallace's silence and long absences from view also prompt obvious speculation about his health, especially since his late June accident.

"My health is good," he said. "Of course I cracked my shinbone, but most of the folks who know the type of hard exercise I take wonder why I haven't done it before now. It's inconvenient, that's all."

Has the experience given him a sense of vulnerability? Wouldn't a similar freak accident slow him down if it should happen in the course of a campaign?

"No I don't feel vulnerable, and yes, of course it would slow me down. But it wouldn't slow down my ideas, about what I'm talking about. It's not necessary in a campaign to show up at every whistle stop. That day is gone. Even if I hadn't been shot or had no problem at all I wouldn't run the kind of campaign I did in '68. There's no necessity in it anymore."

Wallace says he prefers to work at the mansion rather than his office, that he can get more done without all the ceremonial interruptions that besiege him at the capitol.

Perhaps, but it is also apparent that his political antennae tell him he has more to lose than to gain by answering opponents — or the press — at this stage of his run for the presidency.

That other populist, Huey Long, used his state as a testing ground for his program to make "every man a king." How does the state Wallace (or his late wife) has governed for 10 of the past 12 years stand up as a laboratory for his own stance as spokesman for the common man?

That's the briar patch.

With his new mantle of political legitimacy has come, inevitably, a growing army of critics ready to match Wallace words with Wallace deeds. Ignore them as he will, they won't go away.

Here are some of their questions:

—Is Wallace the same man today as when he stood in the schoolhouse door in 1963 to block integration?

Wallace answers that he has never been against anybody because of "the way God made them," that his challenge was not to race but to federal interference in state affairs. He is and always has been, he says, "an abider by the law."

Federal courts have had to order Alabama to desegregate its schools and its state police force; other state agencies are still under court order to desegregate.

—What is Wallace's record as a representative of the working person, "the beautician, taxi driver and industrial worker?"

Alabama is one of eight states without a minimum wage. Since Wallace took office in 1963 his state has dropped from 30th to 37th in unemployment benefits. Two weeks ago a bill to abolish Alabama's right-to-work law and allow workers, if they chose, to bargain for an agency shop failed 52-48. Wallace made no effort to help it pass.

—"We've got to get away in this country from thinking you can tax the heck out of people and solve problems," says Wallace, in his general criticism of costly federal programs.

Alabama receives 24.4 per cent of its general revenues from federal grants as opposed to the average among the states of 16.7 per cent. Only seven states receive a greater percentage.

—The Wallace position: the tax burden should be lifted from the common man; tax-exempt foundations should be taxed.

Alabama is under a federal court order to equalize property tax assessments so that large corporate landowners will pay a bigger share. Corporate income taxes provide 4 per cent of Alabama's state revenue; personal income taxes 15 per cent; regressive taxes, such as on food and medicine, which weigh heaviest on the poor, account for 70 per cent.

None of the approximately 200 foundations chartered in Alabama pays state taxes.

"I'm certainly not ashamed that we have very low taxes in Alabama," says Wallace. "The tax system in Alabama grew up over 100 years, it didn't grow up when I became governor. If we had such a tax structure as alleged, why would the people elect me over and over again?" He also points out that his state's property taxes are not a burden because they are among the nation's lowest. "In Massachusetts a person has to pay about $1,600 on a $25,000 or $30,000 house. In Alabama he pays about $90."

Wallace says that when he formally announces his candidacy, perhaps this fall, he will offer his program for America. Meanwhile, his past performance in Alabama is coming under increasing scrutiny.

From California oranges and concentrate

Homemade orange ice as a cooler-offer

Sweet tartness of the juicy, plump fruit is always available in this wholely pure, natural form.

Old fashioned orange ice cooks in a matter of minutes and can be poured onto an ice cream freezer and turned over to the official hand turner.

Frozen orange dessert has a special advantage. Just beat evaporated milk with the electric mixer, pour in the other ingredients and whip the luscious froth until it's stiff. Slip it into the freezer tray for a few hours and polish your prettiest sherbet dishes for this treat.

Serve plain, with fruits or with one of these luscious orange concentrate-based sauces, these ices will be tops on your lighthearted dessert list.

OLD FASHIONED ORANGE ICE CREAM

2 cups milk
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup heavy cream
1 can (6 ounces) Florida frozen concentrated orange juice

Cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer. Beat eggs slightly; stir in small amount milk mixture. Gradually return to double boiler and cook 1 minute longer. Remove from heat; cool. Stir in heavy cream and undiluted orange concentrate; mix well. Turn into cream can of hand-turned or electric crank freezer. Freeze according to freezer directions. Allow to ripen in ice cream freezer according to freezer directions or place cream can in home freezer.

Combine undiluted orange concentrate, sugar and salt and add 1 tablespoon at a time, whipping until very stiff. Turn into freezer tray and freeze until firm.

YIELD: Approximately 1¼ quarts.

ORANGE SAUCE

1 can (6 ounces) Florida frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted

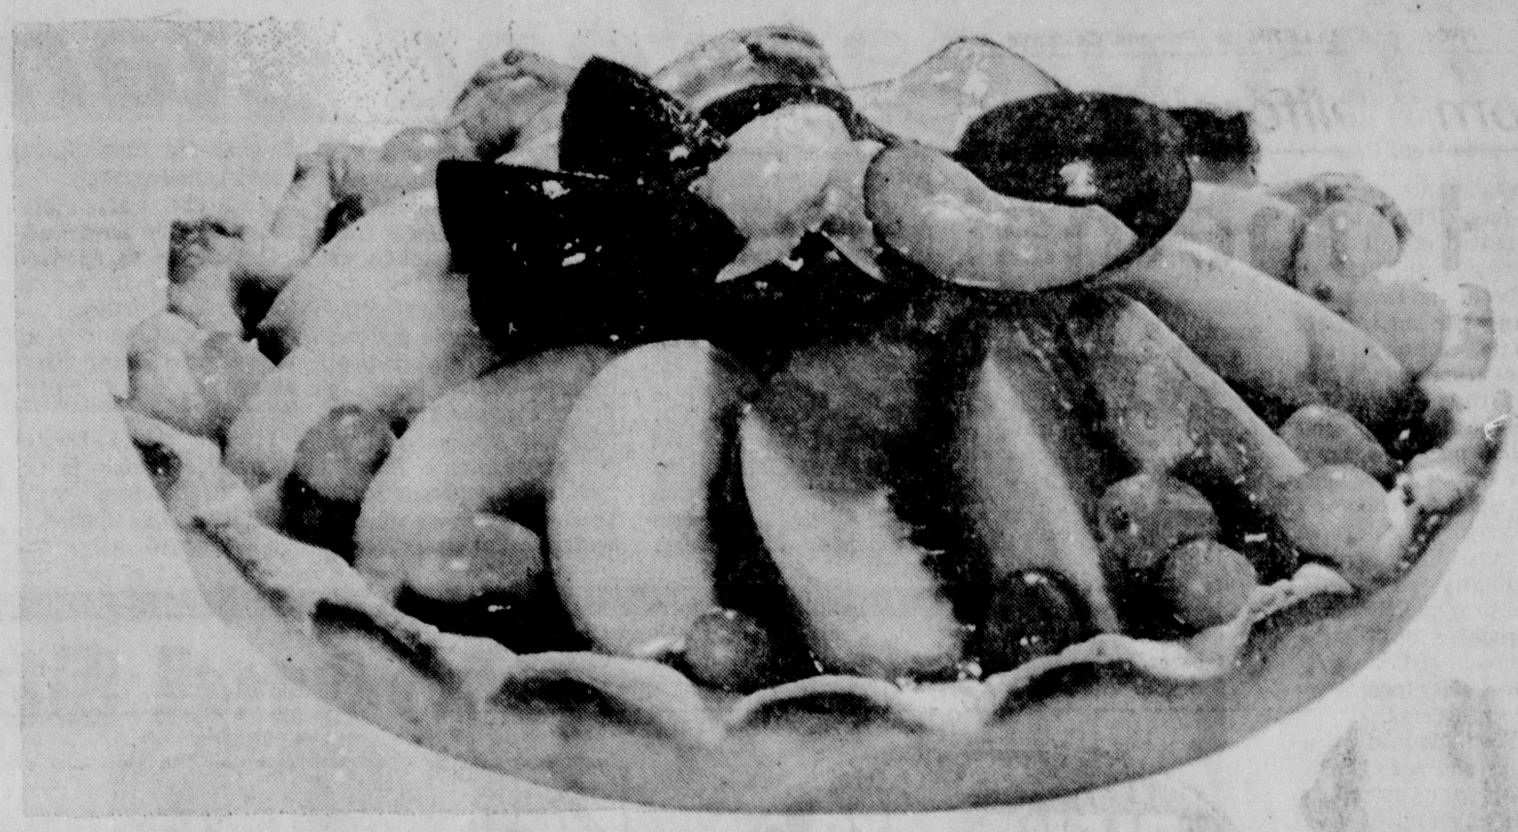
Mosaic tarts; pretty, tasty



French cooks believe in making the best creative use of delicious fresh summer fruit while it's in season.

They do just that with one of their culinary masterpieces: the fresh plum tart.

Fresh California plums, available now through September, are among the most beautiful and most versatile fruits you'll find in the produce market.

Right now the most popular plum of all — the crimson Santa Rosa — is in colorful supply. And tart and tangy El Dorado, Laroda, Nubiana, Late Santa Rosa, Queen Ann and Sim-ka will be appearing in markets very soon. Enjoy fresh plums, crisp and tartly sweet, in cobblers, pies, cakes, kuchens; over ice cream; in main dish and fruit compotes; or like most plum purists prefer, icy-cold from the refrigerator for delicious out-of-hand eating.

Do be sure, however you plan to enjoy them, to start with fully ripened plums for the very best flavor. California plum growers have these hints for you: select fresh plums that are full-colored for their variety, and firm except for a slightly soft tip end — a good indication of ripeness.

Unripened plums will mature if left at room temperature — but watch carefully; plums turn overripe very fast. Kept in the refrigerator, ripe plums will stay bright and fresh for 3 to 5 days.

In the manner of a French masterpiece here's a dessert tart with California character. Fresh California plums are still the star of this luscious tart but other juicy summer fruits have been added in beautiful jewel-like mosaic layers. With the bounty of California plums and other fresh fruits in the market, you can create your own glamorous fruit mosaic tarts, the French way.

Start with a lacey-edged pastry shell and a layer of fresh California plum filling. Then arrange more poached plum slices with other summer fruits — fresh California peaches, seedless grapes, strawberries, or melons — in a mosaic pattern and brush all with a shimmery currant jelly glaze. Depending on the combination of fruit you use, the effect may be different, but always beautiful and delicious.

For additional exciting ways to use and serve fresh California fruits this summer, write for your free copy of a colorful 48-page booklet. Prepared by the growers of California fruits, this beautifully illustrated booklet contains more than 100 tested recipes. Please send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to "FRUIT OF SUMMER," P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, CA 95825.

2 cups sliced fresh California peaches (peel if desired)

Crust: Sift flour, salt and sugar into mixing bowl. Add lemon rind. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Gradually add cold milk, tossing to distribute evenly. Shape mixture into ball. Press dough onto bottom and sides of 9 or 10 inch pie plate. Prick with fork. Bake in 425 degree oven 25-30 minutes, or until golden. Cool.

Filling: While crust bakes, prepare filling. Combine plums, sugar, water and salt in saucepan. Bring to boil; simmer, uncovered, 3 to 5 minutes or until plums are just barely tender. (Plums should not lose their shape.) Drain and measure juice, reserving plums. Add enough water to juice to make 1¼ cups. Measure cornstarch into saucepan. Gradually add plum juice, stirring constantly with wire whisk. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture thickens. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in almond extract. Cool slightly; pour into bottom of pie shell. Sprinkle grapes over filling, then arrange peaches in a ring over and around grapes. Lastly arrange poached plums in center of pie. Melt currant jelly; drizzle over entire surface of fruits. Chill pie 2 hours. Cut into wedges to serve.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The great food stamp dilemma

The food stamp program was created in 1961 to rid farmers of crop surpluses "in a beneficial manner ... and to raise the level of nutrition among low-income households," said Judge Wright.

"The situation has completely changed now," said Butz in a recent interview. "The department doesn't have any surpluses except some milk. Food stamps have really become a welfare program."

He proposed food stamps be placed in HEW along with most other federal assistance programs.

The Ford administration recently shelved USDA proposals for sweeping reforms which might have increased food stamp assistance to the poor.

"They're taking a closer, longer look in the White House at all benefit programs," said a source at USDA. "They didn't want us to paint them into a corner."

Food stamps cost the government $5 billion in the fiscal year ended June 31, and Butz has been complaining that food assistance eats up too much of the USDA budget.

During a heated Senate Agriculture Committee session last February, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said: "Mr. Secretary, don't worry about the fact that 60 per cent of your budget is food stamps. That's the business of Congress. It's your business to administer it."

At the same hearing, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., accused Butz of violating the law because USDA food stamp regulations do not provide for "a nutritionally adequate diet," as the 1971 Food Stamp Act mandates.

"Sen. McGovern has called for my resignation because he says I've not been enforcing the law," said Butz in March. "He's absolutely off base. We rigorously have enforced the law."

Judge Wright said in the June ruling:

"The secretary failed to comply with the procedural command in promulgating allotment regulations for the food stamp programs."

The court found USDA rules invalid, but continued them in effect until new regulations are drafted by Oct. 10.

The department recently has taken the offensive on the food stamp controversy, issuing reports that thousands of students, persons living in communes and some middle-class families have lied their way onto food stamp rolls.

Many errors have been administrative, department figures show. One study showed 15.7 per cent of all recipient dollars went to "households ineligible for the program. However, almost half of these were to households which would have been eligible had the registration requirement been met."

"We're attempting to cut out the chiselers," Butz said.

Assistant USDA Secretary Richard Feltner told the House Agriculture Committee last month that willfull fraud accounted for just .8 of one per cent of all recipients in 1974.

Two attempts to deal with students and commune dwellers were ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

One, the so-called "hippie household provision," denied stamps to anyone living in a house with one or more unrelated people. It was ruled unconstitutional in a 1973 decision.

Pollock says the rule forced from food stamp rolls "the poorest of the poor" — migrant and urban families forced to live with other familes in order to scrape by.

Another regulation would have disqualified anyone in a household where there is a person over 18 years old who is a dependent of a parent not eligible for stamps. While it would have forced many students off stamps, it also would have eliminated some welfare recipients. The rule was thrown out on a narrow, 5-4 vote, and another version now is in effect.

While the courts have been critical of the Department of Agriculture, criticism also has come from within the government.

Last February, Congress rebuffed attempts by President Ford and Butz to increase the price of food stamps, and the U.S. General Accounting Office lambasted USDA for half-hearted plans to find and sign up persons eligible but not receiving stamps.

In 1974, USDA was ordered by U.S. District Court Judge Miles Lord to upgrade state-run efforts to sign up eligibles. Lord also ordered USDA to spend $278 million appropriated for the task in 1973 by Congress. The department now is being sued in 25 states where the Food Research and Action Center alleges inadequate compliance with the order.

Department officials decline to discuss the latest court order on nutritional soundness until a decision is made on whether to appeal it.

The court found that the present allotment system, based on a hypothetical average family of four, is illegal because it does not take into account age or sex of recipients. Simply put: A diet sufficient for a 4-year-old nursery school student is not enough for a 22-year-old unemployed construction worker.

And the nationwide average price for an adequate diet is not adequate for a family buying the food in the Northeast and other populous regions where prices are above average, said Judge Wright.

If the department chooses to comply in October, or if it loses on appeal, it has two options.

"We could raise the average allotment so it covers (adequately) virtually everyone, or we could go family by family and take into account such things as sex and age," says P. Royal Shipp, deputy administrator of Food and Nutrition Services at USDA.

The latter approach could be an "administrative nightmare," says a USDA staff member.

Shipp says raising the discount average to cover everyone "would be very, very expensive," but declines to estimate how much it would cost.

"What you end up doing if you average up to cover everybody, is you end up giving some families 200 per cent of what they need," says Shipp.

Meanwhile, another suit against USDA may be in the offing, and it could be the most significant battle yet.

FRAC claims the Economy Diet Plan is inadequate even when food stamps provide enough money to buy it. Many nutritionists agree, including some experts at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

If new USDA rules do not upgrade the diet on which stamps are issued, "we will go back to court and seek review of the adequacy of the Economy Food Plan," says Pollock.

Ryan confused but won't panic

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nolan Ryan's eight-game losing streak is confusing the California fireballer, but the fallen Angel tries to keep things in perspective while struggling to snap the slump.

"It does no good to panic," said Ryan after dropping an 8-3 decision to the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night. "I've been through spells like this before."

Ryan hurled a record-tying fourth career no-hitter against the Orioles on June 1. But Baltimore scored six runs Tuesday night before chasing him from the mound after only 1 1/3 innings.

"I felt all right warming up," Ryan said, "but once the game started I couldn't get my fast ball over. It's a matter of timing—my rhythm is off. And until I correct that, I'll continue to have games like this."

The even-tempered Ryan may not be ready to panic, but the complete form reversal is of great concern to the Angels.

In the first start after the recent no-hitter, Ryan hurled a two-hit, 6-0 victory over Milwaukee on June 6 and increased his record to 10-3.

His earned run average for nine starts since then, covering 56 1/3 innings, is a whopping 6.39. He has hurled only one complete game during that span, losing a 2-0 decision to Milwaukee last Friday. His record has tumbled to 10-11.

Despite his 1975 start, Ryan contends he hasn't thrown consistently well all year and that his fast ball hasn't approached the velocity he had at the end of last season.

"His arm is sound, and he's as strong as a bull," said California Manager Dick Williams. "That's encouraging. But he still seems to be trying to muscle the ball instead of popping it at the end of his delivery.

"Normally, Nolan has an easy, fluid motion. He doesn't have to overpower the pitches."

"He doesn't appear to be concentrating on his follow through," Williams said. "Nolan tends to agree, but right now he's confused because he feels strong and he's not winning. He's not depressed, but he feels bad because he's not helping the club."

Tommy Davis of the Orioles, who singled during a four-run first inning and then finished Ryan with a two-run homer in the second, offered his theory on the Angels' pitcher.

"If his shoulder hurts, or even if he's thinking about it," Davis said, "that could be a big factor. A pitcher needs his shoulder to follow through. Otherwise, he'd have a hard time getting his pitches down."

Ryan allowed four hits, including a two-run single by Brooks Robinson, walked four and struck out two during his brief stint.

"He didn't throw well in California the last time we saw him," said Baltimore catcher Ellie Hendricks, "and he was worse this time. He wasn't throwing hard; I even dug in at the plate."

Mike Cuellar notched his sixth victory in his last seven starts while scattering nine hits. The Angels bunched three hits in both the fifth and seventh innings to score their runs, with Mike Miley driving home one run in each rally.

"I hope there's nothing seriously wrong with Ryan," said Davis. "The fans love to see Nolan pitch, and so do I."

NFL players still unhappy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago, the National Football League was in a turmoil with the players in the middle of a 42-day strike against the owners over what they called the "freedom issues," centering on the "Rozelle compensation rule."

The 1974 season got under way when the players, unable to break the ice with the owners, reported and played without a contract.

The turmoil remains this year since there still is no collective bargaining agreement. The "Rozelle rule," the subject of a just-completed, 55-day trial in Minneapolis, still is the major stumbling block to a new contract.

Representatives of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, and the NFL Players Association met again today under the auspieces of a federal mediator in an attempt to break the deadlock.

"As the 1975-76 season of the NFL approaches, the issues necessary for a collective bargaining agreement . . . remain in dispute," said James F. Scearce, deputy national director of the mediation service in a July 8 letter calling the meeting.

"Both organizations and the players and clubs they represent must exert every effort in order to reach a satisfactory conclusion to these long-standing and unresolved issues," he said.

The players union submitted a list of demands, slightly different from last year, to the owners on April 4. Missing was a call for the elimination of the "Rozelle rule."

Ed Garvey, association executive director, said the rule would not be part of the bargaining because it was being challenged in the courts. Two weeks later, the Management Council responded that all issues must be bargained, including the "Rozelle Rule."

The owners said the option clause, the waiver system and trades, along with the draft and compensation rule, all involve issues of player retention and movement.

When an athlete plays out the option of his contract, he technically is a free agent, clear of obligations to the club he belonged to and eligible to offer his services to all 26 clubs, or even to other leagues.

However, if he is signed by a different club in the NFL, that organization is required to compensate his former employer for its investment in him. If two NFL clubs can not agree on his worth, Commissioner Pete Rozelle is empowered to stipulate compensation.

The players have charged that the compensation rule inhibits their freedom. The owners claim a club needs to be compensated for the investment in the player.

Thirty-five players have moved to other clubs since 1962, when the compensation clause was enacted.

Rozelle has had to intervene in four cases—the moves of Dave Parks from San Francisco to New Orleans; Pat Fischer from St. Louis to Washington; Phil Olsen from New England to Los Angeles and Dick Gordon from Chicago to Los Angeles.

Dodgers suffer typical defeat

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Unhappily, it was a typical Dodger loss.

The 1975 Dodgers have turned into a punchless bunch and Tuesday night's 4-3 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals was typical of the way the defending National League champions are losing.

—Despite eight hits and eight walks, they scored only three runs.

— Davey Lopes opened the Dodger first with a single and promptly was picked off by pitcher John Denny. One out later John Hale cracked his fourth home run. Net loss one run.

— Ron Cey led off the second by walking. But Willie Crawford grounded to third and Bill Russell grounded into a double play.

— Steve Yeager led off the third inning with a double and stayed on second as Doug Rau struck out and Lopes and Bill Buckner each grounded out second to first.

— The Dodgers did get a run in the fourth. But that was all they got despite three walks, a hit and two wild pitches!

— They put together a hit, two walks and a sacrifice fly for their third and final run in the sixth.

— Steve Garvey led off the eighth inning with a single and raced to second on Ted Sizemore's errant throw. But Cey grounded to first on a good play by Ron Fairly. The slumping (.238) Willie Crawford was given an intentional pass to set up a double play. Manny Mota pinch-hit for Russell and grounded into a nice first-to-second-to-first double play ending the inning.

— In the ninth, Yeager led off with an infield hit. Mike Marshall layed down a good bunt, but another nice play by Fairly nipped Yeager at second. Lopes and Buckner were retired on outfield flyballs.

— Garvey whacked a one-out double in the 10th and Cey was walked intentionally. Lee Lacy batted for Crawford and fouled to Fairly. Ken McMullen hit for Rick Auerbach and flied to right.

The Cardinals ended the Dodger misery in the 11th when Fairly singled, went to third on Willie Davis' second hit, a double, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mario Guerrero (.217), only his sixth of the year and first since June 9.

All this could have been prevented if the Dodgers hadn't played poorly afield. They committed four errors and the first St. Louis run was unearned.

Bill Russell made the first of a pair of miscues with his usual once-a-game in-the-dirt throw on a grounder by Guerrero in the third inning. Lopes dropped Denny's foul pop up down the first base line giving the pitcher a second chance to sacrifice. This is something the Dodgers have found almost impossible to do. Denny did it.

Luis Melendez belted a Rau pitch for two bases driving in Guerrero.

That tied the game 1-1 and the Dodgers went ahead, 2-1 in the fourth. But the Cards tied it in the sixth on a one-out double by Ted Simmons and Davis' single.

The Dodgers came right back to take a 3-2 lead with their hard-earned run in their half of the inning.

But St. Louis knotted the count in the eighth off Marshall who had just replaced Rau.

Simmons and Fairly got one-out singles and were wild pitched to second and third. Davis hit a sacrifice fly to tie the game for the last time.

"I enjoyed beating the Dodgers," said Davis who contributed two hits and two runs batted in. "I think I have a lot of years left and I feel I can play forever. I just love playing baseball and I'd love to play for St. Louis forever."

Fairly, who entered the game as a pinch hitter for Buddy Bradford in the eighth, had two singles that figured in run scoring innings and came up with the three fielding gems.

"I think the key to coming off the bench and playing well is to get yourself mentally involved in the game," Fairly said, "and then when you come in you're ready to be physically involved."

In his first inning in the field, the 37-year-old Fairly leaped and stabbed a line drive by Cey only to have it pop out of his glove. He picked it up and raced to first and slid in time to nip Cey who was also sliding in the game's most peculiar out.

"I got my fireplugs (body) off the ground and thought I had caught the ball," grinned the red head. "Then I thought I could beat Cey to first. But it was two fireplug bodies sliding into first. I can honestly say I'm one of the few ballplayers that hasn't slowed with age. I was never very fast."

The Dodgers left 10 runners stranded. But the most frustrating thing of all was that the Reds had lost their game and the Dodgers once again blew and opportunity to pick up ground. And now they are only 2-4 on this homestand.

Rau allowed only one earned run and four hits in his seven innings. He struck out six and walked two. Meanwhile, Denny gave up five hits, walked six and cut loose with two wild pitches in six innings.

It was another sweet win for St. Louis fans. Al Hrabosky (8-2) got the win over Marshall. Hrabosky had 14 saves to Marshall's six and the two scoreless innings lowered the "mad Hungarian's ERA to 1.57 (compared to Marshall's 2.67).

Marshall hasn't been too successful in saving games for Rau. He's been successful only once in five tries since coming off the disabled list.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (13-8) faces Bob Forsch (8-7) tonight. The series concludes with a Businessmen's Special Thursday at 1:15 p.m. with Burt Hooton (6-9) pitching against Lynn McGlothen (10-6).

Former Cy Young Award winner Ron Bryant has pitched only 3 2/3 innings for St. Louis with a 25.00 earned run average.

Reds could use Jackson, Rudi

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench had to stop and ponder a while when asked what members of the world champion Oakland A's might be good enough to crash the lineup of the red-hot Cincinnati Reds.

"I guess we could use Reggie Jackson," the Reds' all-star catcher replied. "And maybe Joe Rudi—he's such a good allaround player. But I will tell you this. No other team in baseball can put 25 men on the field better than ours.

"This is our year to win the World Series. I am sure we will do it. Everybody else on the team is just as confident."

It has been 35 years since the Reds won the baseball championship although they represented the National League in the series in 1961, 1970 and 1972 and lost in the league playoffs to the New York Mets in 1973.

Balance and confidence are the main ingredients of the current Big Red Machine which so far this year has outplayed every team in both leagues and is threatening—despite a slight post All-Star Game letdown—to make a runaway of the NL's West Division.

Bench said the Cincinnati surge could be traced to the move shifting Rose from the outfield to third base.

"It not only strengthened our defense on that side of the diamond but gave us more punch with Foster in the outfield," he said. "A terrific move by the skipper, Sparky Anderson is the greatest."

Pomona council may help Poly

Expanded seating for Cal Poly Kellogg Field may be ready in time for this fall's football season if the city of Pomona will contribute $25,000 to the project.

Dick Carr, chairman of the stadium citizen's committee, told the Pomona City Council this week that the Cal Poly Foundation and the college student body were each prepared to contribute $25,000 contingent on the city's participation.

The $75,000 would provide an additonal 4,100 seats to the present 2,500 seating capacity.

It had been hoped earlier, said Carr, that the County of Los Angeles would contribute $25,000 to the project, but a ruling by the county counsel's staff had eliminated that possibility.

Carr described the county's action as an "eleventh hour" setback for the project, and stated that the city would have to act soon if the seating is to be ready for the football season.

Charles T. Richardson, a member of the stadium committee, told the council that $25,000 would represent a good investment for the city, since the facilities could be used for a variety of city events and help build a close relationship between the city and university.

Richardson pointed out that the expanded seating would be located just inside the Pomona city limits, although the football field itself is not in the city.

La Verne Post 330 will be out to defend its District 18 championship when this year's tournament begins Thursday evening on the Ralph Welch Park diamond in Pomona.

Last year, La Verne was forced into 10 innings before it slipped past Pomona Post 30 in the championship game, 5-4. This year, the two teams open against each other in the second of two scheduled games Thursday.

Favored Arcadia Post 247 will take on Claremont Post 78 in the 4 p.m. opener, with the Pomona-La Verne confrontation scheduled one half hour after the conclusion of the first game.

Manager Woody Hansen of host Pomona Post 30 is hoping he can come up with the right pitching combination to trip La Verne for the third time within a week.

"We just beat La Verne twice," Hansen noted. "But it's going to be tough to beat them three in a row. We're going to have to be lucky to win this thing — we have some very young pitchers.

"We scramble, fight and pray to get our runs," he added. "However, we have been hitting pretty good lately, and our defense has been playing pretty good ball."

Pomona finished the regular season with a 23-10 record, while going 10-2 in league competition.

Hansen is hoping his southpaws can handle La Verne as they did over the past weekend.

"Our lefties did an excellent job against La Verne," he said. "So I'll probably stick with the lefties. I'll start either Dean Fritchle or Allan Wells — probably Wells."

Even though La Verne lost back-to-back games to Pomona over the weekend, Post 330 manager Earl Bumstead thinks it may have helped his team.

"I really think we learned a lot about them over the weekend," the La Verne skipper commented. "We know they're strong offensively, but we're pretty sure we have a game plan that can beat them.

"I think all the teams in the tournament are pretty equal," he added. "Most of the games should be 'on the edge of your seat' type."

Although Arcadia is the favorite to win the tourney, because of its better record, Manager Jack Helber's Claremont Post 78 figures to give Post 247 a tough time.

"Helber has got a good, but young ball club," Pomona's Hansen reported. "They're going to be tough. Jack has done a real good job with the team. If (John) Huddleston pitches for Claremont, I think they have a good chance of beating Arcadia."

The double-elimination tournament is scheduled for four days, with the championship game being played Sunday at Welch Park.

The winner of the District 18 will then head up to Santa Maria to compete in the Area playoffs, beginning the following Thursday.

Ram vets reach 23; rest due Thursday

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Twenty-three veterans have checked into the Los Angeles Rams training camp with the entire squad due by Thursday night.

On Tuesday, Bill Nelson, a five-year veteran defensive tackle from Oregon State, became the fourth defensive lineman in the Rams' Fullerton State camp.

Defensive end Joe Jackson of New Mexico State left camp without giving any reason Tuesday, a team spokesman said. Jackson was a free agent who had played with the New York Jets and Charlotte of the World Football League.

Mike Fryer, a punter from UCLA, was also signed on Tuesday. A native of Santa Barbara, the 23-year-old Fryer will have to compete with three other punters for a spot on the roster.

American League roundup

Oakland in high gear

By Associated Press

The Oakland A's, cruising toward their fifth straight division championship, are in high gear and slugger Reggie Jackson knows why.

"Last year I had a pretty good season," said Jackson, "and I didn't get much of a raise—only five grand. Charlie Finley (A's owner) wants results. The man I work for is hard to deal with.

"If we get five runs, I want 10. I don't want no rest until October...October 20. The time to play ball is now and make that money."

The A's brought their salary drive into Detroit Tuesday night and manhandled the Tigers 11-0, 16-4. The lop-sided twinbill saw the A's collect 24 base hits off five Detroit pitchers. By the middle of the second game, the 29,089 fans at Tiger Stadium were booing when the A's made an out, cheering derisively when the Tigers did something right and chanting "We want Billy", a reference to recently deposed Texas manager Billy Martin who was a favorite when he managed the Tigers.

"I'm not out to humiliate anyone," said Jackson. "But you have to keep putting the pressure on because when you're down, nobody's going to let you up."

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas blanked Cleveland 4-0, Baltimore whipped California 8-3, Boston shaded Minnesota 5-4, New York rocked Chicago 11-6 and Kansas City split with Milwaukee, winning 3-2 and losing 6-3.

Oakland's twin-killing left the A's a cozy 10½ games ahead of the nearest competition—the Kansas City Royals. Except for Charlie Finley's checkbook, the A's don't have an awful lot to get excited about these days. The division title appears secure and that gives them a long time to get ready for the playoffs and, possibly, their fourth straight World Series victory.

Jackson, for one, sees nothing but smooth sailing. After Tuesday's massacre, in which the A's set a club record for runs in a double header, Jackson accidentally dropped his diamond World Series ring on the clubhouse floor.

"That's all right," he said picking it up casually. "I'll get another one."

Manager Alvin Dark is the club's designated worrier.

"I don't believe in sure things," said Dark. "We're one game ahead as far as I'm concerned and that's how we're gonna play. We've got 67 games left to play. That's a bunch of games."

Rangers 4, Indians 0

"Now that's the way I'm supposed to pitch, pardner" said Texas righty Gaylord Perry. "It was starting to get embarrassing."

Perry, apparently in the groove now after a rocky start with the Rangers, tossed a brilliant two-hitter against his exteammates, struck out 13 batters and retired the last 22 he faced. It was his third shutout in his last four outings and upped his record to 9-14. Jim Spencer contributed a two-run single as new manager Frank Lucchesi made it two for two.

Stalwick faces tough task in Shrine Game

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

Kent Stalwick may have his hands full when he competes in the 24th Annual North-South Shrine All-Star Football Game Saturday night in the Rose Bowl.

Stalwick, a two-time All-CIF defensive back from Claremont High, is slated to see some action for the North in the defensive backfield.

The game promises to be a wideopen offensive affair, with two outstanding quarterbacks guiding their teams.

Quarterbacks Brian Bethke (South Hills) and Tom Miller (Burroughs of Burbank) of the North and Dan Morovick (St. John Bosco) and Phil Duckworth (Huntington Park) of the South came into the contest with tremendous credentials.

Bethke ran for 1015 yards and passed for 1302 yards to earn All-CIF 4-A Co-Player of the Year honors. The other Player of the Year was Morovick, who completed 121 out of 210 passes for 1888 yards and 21 touchdowns.

Those two figure to be the starting quarterbacks in the game, but the North coaches haven't made up their mind yet.

The competition between quarterbacks Bethke and Miller has been so even the North coaches may not decide the starter until Saturday.

Co-coaches Arnold Leckman and Joe Zeno, Jr. report their North QBs have moved the team very well in drills.

Bethke, a Wishbone quarterback, is a fine runner and passer and is especially feared running the option. He has already quarterbacked the East to a 33-32 victory over the West in the San Gabriel Valley All-Star Football Game this summer.

Miller, a 6-foot-3 southpaw, is a better pure passer while not the threat Bethke is at running the ball.

It'll be Morvick's passing and the receiving of speedsters Vin Mulroy (Newport Harbor) and Ron Farrell (El Rancho) that should keep Stalwick on his toes.

Stalwick has already proven himself a very respectable defensive back by being named the East's Most Valuable Defensive Player in the San Gabriel Valley All-Star Classic. In that game, Kent snagged two interceptions, recovered one fumble, and had nearly a dozen tackles.

Both teams are also filled with talented offensive backs.

The North can call on Colton's Tony Olivarria, who ran for 1400 yards in only six games.

The South has Ernie Saenz of Culver City, who ran for a staggering total of 1998 yards last fall.

Kickoff time for the game is scheduled for 7 p.m., and officials of the sponsoring Al Malaikah Temple look for a turnout of 40,000.

Tickets for the classic are on sale at Mutual agencies and the Shrine office, 749-0166.

Sullivan paces CTC swim club

Eight-year-old Mary Sue Sullivan led Claremont Tennis Club's swim team to victory with three wins in a recent swim meet against the Alta Loma Swim Club.

Miss Sullivan claimed her triumphs in the breaststroke, the backstroke and the butter-5 fly.

Double winners for Claremont included Paul Cheverton (17 years old), Damon Dennis (12 years old), Bruce Keeling (8 years old) and Judy Sullivan (10 years old).

Dori Jones (6 years old) and Brian Imwalle (5 years old) were also winners for Claremont in their events.

The meet was the debut appearance for Yoel Kende's CTC swim club of 40 members. Kende was an All-American and a former Olympican. Terry Michalski coaches the Alta Loma Swim Club.

District 20 B.L. stars suffer loss

The District 20 Big League All-Stars dropped their first round game in the Section 2 Tournament Tuesday night at John Galvin Park in Ontario.

The All-Stars from the Pomona Valley Big League watched District 24 of Riverside score seven runs in the first innings and run off with a 7-6 victory.

District 20 now drops down into the consolation bracket of the double-elimination tournament and will face District 49 of Barstow, a 2-1 loser to District 30 of Santa Ana Tuesday night, Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

Tonight, District 23 from the West End of San Bernardnio County (Upland, Chino, Montclair, Ontario) will battle District 30B from Santa Ana in a consolation bracket game at 5:30 p.m. at Galvin Park. District 21-43 of Rialto and San Bernardino will take on District 18-19-60 of El Monte, Covina and La Puente at 8 p.m. in the championship bracket outing.

A smog alert delayed the start of Tuesday night's game between District 20 and District 24 by an hour and a half. So the District 30-District 49 game was called after six innings because of curfew.

District 20 took a 4-2 lead at the end of two innings, but District 24 exploded for five runs on five hits and one error to put the game away.

Winning pitcher Derrick Feaster of the Riverside team collected two hits to lead his team at the plate.

Pomona Valley pitcher Joe Madrigal, who relieved starter John Andrzejewski in the third inning, drove in his team's final run with a triple in the sixth inning.

Senior Division Tournament

Two local teams fall

La Verne suffered its first loss and Montclair Central was eliminated in Section 3 Senior Division Little League Tournament action Tuesday evening.

SENIOR DIVISION TOURNEY
Sect 3
Tuesday's results

Hacienda Highlander 9, La Verne 7

Tonight's game
La Verne vs. Eastside at Hacienda Highlander, 5:30 p.m.

La Verne, champion of District 20 this year, dropped a 9-7 decision to Hacienda Highlander after the hosts nipped Montclair Central, 9-8, in a suspended first round game.

Montclair Central was then eliminated from the tournament when it takes on Eastside in the semifinals. Game time is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. on the Hacienda Highlander field in Hacienda Heights.

If La Verne knocks off Eastside, the District 20 champions would then have to defeat Hacienda Highlander Thursday and Friday in order to win the Section championship.

La Verne took a 3-0 lead after one inning against Hacienda Highlander Tuesday night, but then the hosts exploded for five runs in the second frame to take the lead.

La Verne, however, battled back again to regain the lead with a four-run second inning to grab a 7-5 lead. Peter Montero slammed a three-run home run in the second inning for La Verne, and then Eddie Fonseca immediately followed that with a solo blast.

Hacienda Highlander tied it up with two runs in the third inning and one in the sixth, and finally won it in the seventh with a two-run rally.

Hacienda Highlander won its suspended game against Montclair Central on an error. The game had been suspended Monday night after 8½ innings of play, so the Hacienda team only needed its half of the inning to win it.

Eastside grabbed a quick 4-0 lead against Montclair in the second game, which was played at Los Altos High. Eastside scored three runs on two hits in the first inning and added another unearned run in the third to cap its scoring for the night.

Montclair Central scored in the fourth and fifth innings.

Montclair's starting pitcher Marty Ogg was ejected from the game in the first inning for throwing his helmet. Guy Englehardt came on in relief and limited Eastside to just one hit while fanning nine.

Art Garcia and Jeff Kizziar collected two hits each for Montclair in the loss. Ironically, Montclair outhit Eastside by an 8-3 margin.

Blue Sharks, Wildcats win

The Palomares Blue Sharks and the Emerson Wildcats advanced in first round action of the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department's Fifth Annual Girls Softball Tournament Tuesday at Ted Greene field.

The Palomares Blue Sharks, led by winning pitcher Nancy Fields' game-winning hit in the sixth inning, defeated the Westmont Dodgers, 15-14. Miss Fields batted three-for-four in the game. Elizabeth Maladonado was the leading hitter for the Westmont Dodgers, going three-for-five at the plate while clubbing a home run and scoring three times.

The Emerson Wildcats, led by winning pitcher Edith Duffy's six-hitter, whipped the Simons Bears, 16-4.

First-round action in the double elimination tournament continues when the Palomares Yankees take on the Simons Chargers at 5:30. The Emerson Supersonics battle the Simons Wildcats in the 7 p.m. game. Both games will be played at Ted Greene field.

A REAL HANDICAP — Dave Gaudin, who lost both his legs because of congenital defects, perches atop a stool to hit a tee shot as his wife Jenne looks on during a round in New Orleans, La. Gaudin, who vaults onto the stool without assistance, believes he could shoot in the 80s consistently if he played more, but most of his time is spent studying for his classes at medical school.

Frazier to 'bomb Ali'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Challenger Joe Frazier declares the rope-a-dope strategy recently adopted by Muhammad Ali will be an invitation to a bombing.

"I'm going to bomb him right on that rope," the 31-year-old former heavyweight champion stated emphatically. "He can run but he sure can't hide."

"I can see him trying to dance, but when he's trying to dance, he's not going to have his chance."

Frazier described the Oct. 1 heavyweight championship fight in Manila as a "do-or-die situation for both of us."

He added that he would rather fight Ali in the United States, "but he has the championship and he wants to go there and anywhere he wants to fight is all right with me— even in a bedroom."

Frazier had come to Los Angeles expecting to be on the Dinah Shore telecast, but turned it down when Ali was scheduled to be on the same show.

"That was no way to treat me," he declared. "I came here to be on the show but they didn't tell me originally that he was to be on the same show.

LEANING INTO IT — Jim McNeal and Sky Kerley of Saugus demonstrate form that took them to the 1973 and '74 West Coast Sidecar Championship.

'Sidehacks' at Laguna Seca

MONTEREY — One of the most exciting and crowd-pleasing races at the upcoming Monterey Superbike International at Laguna Seca, August 2nd and 3rd, will be for those low-slung, three-wheeled projectiles known as the "sidehacks". Cloaked in bulletshaped streamlining and standing no higher than the rider's knee-cap, the sidecars have featured in highly entertaining and popular demonstration races at every one of the previous three Laguna Seca "Superbike Internationals".

Now they get a full-blooded, no-holds barred race of their own as an integral part of the exciting two-day program plus a shot on CBS Television, who are covering the Monterey Superbike International as a whole for the first time.

The broadsliding sidecars have been known to dazzle the crowd with full-lock drifts and even the occasional series of wild spin-outs as the pace hots up!

And you can bet that the pace will be hot this year as the race carries with it the title of the first U.S. Sidehack Association Champion for the winner.

Part of the huge appeal of the "hacks"a is the fact that the driver of the outfit steers from a face-down, prone position, enveloped by the frontal streamlining and often with a huge racecar-type airfoil "wing" looming over him. While he is sliding and correcting the twitches and wriggles of the outfit, his passenger, affectionately known as the "monkey" is alternately hanging way outboard of the flat platform that is euphemistically termed the "sidecar" or throwing himself over the rear wheel of the machine. This is to counteract the effects of centrifugal force on the delicate balance of the outfit through the turns.

The penalties for a wrong decision by a passenger are equally as devastating as an error by the driver. Failure to hang out of the sidecar in time, on a corner where it is on the inside of the machine, can result in the sidecar wheel picking up in the air and the whole outfit flipping over!

The Monterey Superbike International itself is again for the American Motorcycle Association's Grand National Championship road racing machines . . . big 750cc multi-cylinder racers that will top 150 mph even on the twists of Laguna Seca and that will lay streaks of snaking black rubber out of the tighter turns.

All of the factory teams will be on hand for the $40,000 event that sees a battle royal for the $75,000 Camel Pro Series between the current leader, Gary Scott of the American Harley-Davidson team and the guy that has twice edged him out of the Grand National title in two years . . . Kenny Roberts, Number One man in the hard-to-beat Yamaha squad.

PITCHES WITH HATE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Relief pitcher Al Hrabosky of the St. Louis Cardinals says he puts himself in a "hate mood" when he pitches.

"I hate people in the other team's uniform," says Hrabosky. "I won't pitch until I'm ready to pitch and until I'm in a hate mood."

P.D.A. title is at stake

Auto racing

EAST IRVINE — Traditionally Orange County International Raceway's annual P.C.A. Championship serves up the largest starting field (32) of top fuel dragsters and most hotly contested races ever staged.

This year's 9th Annual P.D.A. Championships Friday and Saturday should be no exception with local top fuel drivers Rick Ramsey, James Warren, Jeb Allen, Tony Nancy, Flip Schofield and 40 others taking up the challenge of Oklahoma City's Marvin Graham and Detroit's Ms. Shirley "Cha Cha" Muldowney.

In addition to the titanic top fuel show, this year's P.D.A. event promises its thousands of spectators the most entertainment in its history, as the highly popular Pro Stock category will make its P.D.A. debut along with increased fields in .Pro Comp (methanol burning Funny Cars, methanol burning dragsters, Fuel Altereds, etc.) and the earthshaking AA/Funny Cars, plus the wheelstanders of "Wild" Bill Shrewsbery and Richard Schroeder providing between round thrills.

The crowd pleasing Pro Stock "factory hot rods" will be led by Mark & Brad Yuill's Reno based Chevy Vega which has two consecutive N.H.R.A. World Championship Series victories to its credit; the 8 second Ford Pinto of Lee Hunter, fresh off a victory at Antelope Valley Raceway; Gary Dodd's all new Ford Pinto; Kevin Rotty's Tucson based Chevy Vega; Sonny Bryant's big block Camaro; and the surprise entry of Washington's Gene McKinney.

The thunderous AA/Funny Cars will be headed by Jim Terry's track record holding Mustang driven by former top fuel standout Gary Cochran; Jake Johnston in the powerful Pisano & Matsubara Vega; Nitro Championships' winner Mike Halloran; Jim Dunn, the popular fireman from La Mirada; Roger Garten's "Warhorse" and John Lombardo.

Topping the Pro Comp aspirants will be 3 time P.D.A. champion Don Enriquez; national record holder John Shoemaker; Brad Anderson; Greg Bellemuer; Sherm Gunn and Bob Blair.

Season starts at Del Mar

DEL MAR — Forty-three days of summer racing began today, at Del Mar, which will be offering its richest programs in 36 seasons of operation by the Pacific Ocean.

DEL MAR'S 36TH SEASON OF THOROUGHBRED RACING
Facts and Figures

DATES — Wednesday, July 23, through Wednesday, Sept. 10. 43 days of racing, six days each week (dark Tuesday).

TIME — First post time 2 p.m. daily. Gates to the track open at noon.

OPENING DAY FEATURE — $20,000-added Palomar Handicap for fillies and mares at 7½-furlongs on the turf course.

HIGHLIGHT OF THE MEET — Sunday, Aug. 31, the estimated $85,000 Del Mar Debutante for two-year-old fillies; Monday, Sept. 1 (Labor Day), the $100,000 Del Mar Invitational Handicap; and Wednesday, Sept. 10 (closing day), the estimated $100,000 Del Mar Futurity for two-year-olds. The third annual "Rocking Chair Derby" will be run Wed., Aug. 20.

NEW FEATURES — A third $5 exacta wagering race (the 7th) in addition to the 5th and 9th races. The feature race will be run as the 8th event each day.

PRICES — Grandstand admission, $2; Clubhouse admission, $3. Reserved seats: Clubhouse loges, $2; Upper Clubhouse & Terrace, $1.50. Grandstand reserved or box seat, $1.50. Senior citizens (65 or older) are admitted to the Grandstand for $1 on weekdays. All prices include tax.

INFORMATION — Mailing address: Del Mar Thoroughbred Club, Del Mar, Calif., 92014. Telephone: (714) 755-1141 or 299-1340.

Topped by three premiere events — the Del Mar Handicap, Debutante and Futurity — a record stakes program of 25 races worth $730,000 in added money will entice many of the West's best Thoroughbreds into competition at the one mile oval.

The Del Mar Thoroughbred Club, operators of the track since 1970, will again be at the helm with Donald B. Smith serving as executive Vice President and General Manager. During the seven-week season, with racing programs presented every day but Tuesday starting at 2 p.m., more than $3 million in total purse money will be on the line.

As always, the estimated $100,000 Del Mar Futurity wraps up the season as the highlight of the closing day card, Wednesday Sept. 10. Last year's champion, Frank McMahon's Diabolo, collected the winner's share of the richest Futurity in history ($117,570) while giving jockey Bill Shoemaker his fourth consecutive win in the two-year-old championship.

Shoemaker also captured the Debutante last year aboard Morris Shapiro's Bubblewin. The gross purse for this summer's renewal, set for Sunday, Aug. 31, is likely to exceed the 1974 record of $83,895.

The $100,000 Del Mar Handicap, an invitational event at a mile and three-eighths on the turf course, returns to its former status as the Labor Day headliner. The current leaders of the turf handicap division — Montmartre, La Zanzara, Pass the Glass and defending champ Redtop III — will be pointed for the Monday, Sept. 1, running of the race.

Adding luster to the late-season string of divisional championships is the enriched Ramona Handicap for older fillies and mares, now valued at $50,000-added. Tizna, last year's titlist, Vanity Handicap heroine Dulcia, stretch-running La Zanzara and classy Modus Vivendi are all candidates for the mile and one-eighth turf test, scheduled for the final Sunday program of the meet, Sept. 7.

Kathy Heddy fells a legend

CALI, Colombia (AP) — No world records fell at the World Aquatics Games, but Kathy Heddy felled one large legend and the sound could be heard like a belly-flop off the high tower.

"I told you the East Germans were vulnerable," said Flip Darr, Coach of the American women's team, after Miss Heddy had cut record holder Ulrike Tauber down to size in the women's 200 individual medley Tuesday night. "The East Germans might be bigger and have faster times, but in our practices we only emphasized our strengths and their weaknesses.

"Our girls have a lot of guts and Kathy proved that tonight," said Darr. "Our fillies just don't fold."

Heddy, a 17-year-old high school student from Summit, N.J., collared Miss Tauber in the final five meters and gave the United States its third and final gold medal of the day.

Tim Shaw, the fabulous freestyler from Long Beach, Calif., bagged the first of what could be three individual gold medals by winning the 200 freestyle in the nip-and-tuck race with his amateur athletic union teammate, Steve Furniss of Santa Ana, Calif.

Phil Boggs took home America's other gold medal, successfully defending his men's springboard diving championship earlier in the day.

"I always had the incentive to win," said Miss Heddy, a member of the American team so thoroughly beaten by the East Germans at the first aquatic games in Belgrade in 1973.

"After 150 meters I just put my head down and gave it all I had.

"I swam the way I planned," said Miss Heddy, who handed Miss Taubert what the East German girl called "the worst defeat of my career" at a dual meet between the United States and East Germany in the fall of 1974. "She was pretty far ahead of me midway through the race but I knew she would be. I knew I needed a dynamite finish and that's what I got."

The American women say their near-victory at the dual meet in Concord, Calif., and a positive thinking course given them during the first week of training camp has them thinking gold medals here in Cali.

"The East Germans are good but we'll have to show them we're just as good," Miss Heddy said.

Hendricks looks for another team

By Associated Press

Ted Hendricks is looking, Francis Peay is moving, Nick Buoniconti is returning, but Marv Fleming is still missing.

"On a scale of 1 to 10, I'd say I'm 9.99 disappointed at not being able to play here," Hendricks said of the Green Bay Packers. "I was very happy here."

But Hendricks and the Pack were unable to agree on terms for this season. So the linebacker, who set a National Football League record in 1974 with seven blocked kicks, is looking for another team.

Hendricks' agent, A.J. Roberts of Miami, said he and the Packers did not even get far enough in their negotiations to discuss salary in their final meeting Tuesday.

"We wanted some sort of insurance against injury and couldn't get it," Roberts said. Bart Starr, the new Packers' coach and general manager, said Hendricks and Roberts "were asking for certain fringes we couldn't live with. I think they were being a little unfair in that."

Peay, once a No. 1 draft pick of the New York Giants and then a star offensive lineman with the Packers, was traded again—this time from the Kansas City Chiefs to the New Orleans Saints for an undisclosed draft choice.

The 31-year-old Peay, a nineyear NFL veteran, played the last two seasons wth the Chiefs.

Buoniconti, the Miami Dolphins' middle linebacker, prepared for the 1975 season after spending the off-season as a lawyer.

"I really don't know how long I'm going to play," said Buoniconti, who's entering his 14th NFL season. "I've been playing on a year-to-year basis for three years."

The Washington Redskins have just about given up the search for Fleming, a tight end obtained from the Dolphins in an off-season trade. Fleming still hasn't shown up at the Redskins' camp and Washington Coach George Allen said if the veteran fails to report the trade would be cancelled.

In return for Fleming, Washington sent the rights to fullback Charley Harraway to Miami. Harraway, who played in the World Football League still hasn't reported to the Dolphins.

The trade was contingent on both players reporting to their new clubs, Allen said.

The NFL's Buffalo Bills announced the signing of defensive end Pat Toomay, a free agent who has started the past three seasons with the Dallas Cowboys. The Bills also traded linebacker Dave Washington to the San Francisco 49ers for an undisclosed future draft pick.

The New York Giants acquied fifth-year cornerback Leonard Dunlap from the San Diego Chargers for a future draft choice, while the Charlotte Hornets of the WFL cut six-year veteran Bob Gladieux. A fullback, Gladieux was the Hornets' leading rusher last year.

LOSES TIGHT GAMES

HOUSTON (AP) — If poor teams lose the tight games, the Houston Astros are in for a rough season. Houston dropped 15 of its first 19 one-run decision games this season.

Johnson looks good for 49ers

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Former UCLA running back Kermit Johnson — sidelined last week with a viral infection — proved impressive in his first full-scale workout in the San Francisco 49ers' training camp.

"I had never seen Johnson in person or on film," backfield coach Doug Scovil said after practice Tuesday, "but I know one thing now — he's got quick feet."

Scovil also had kind words for running back Wilbur Johnson, last year's Rookie of the Year in the NFL's National Conference despite a seasonlong sprained ankle.

"He looks much better now," Scovil said. "Last year he never really did get the benefit of training camp because of his ankle and he had to play himself into shape during the season. He's in great shape right now and looks very good."

Female alcoholics get 'Extended Hand'

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A new program, shoved aside by what some claim is "male chauvinism" for more than four years, has finally become a reality in Ontario.

The new program, called the "Extended Hand," specializes in the treatment and care of women alcoholics in the West End area. Currently two women, alcoholics, are living in the headquarters of the Extended Hand. The headquarters is located at an older, rented two-bedroom home a short distance from the Wayne Fanning Alcohol Education (AEP) program, which operates at 508 S. Euclid Ave. Other women alcoholics have been treated through Extended Hand, but have since left.

The Extended Hand program was envisioned by Wayne Fanning in 1971 about the same time he was establishing the AEP. Fanning, believing that women alcoholics should have the same opportunity for treatment as men, tried for more than four years to gain support for the program, but failed.

Fanning, after failing to gain the necessary aide from local welfare, mental health and social programs, finally, with a small group of private supporters, managed to get enough money together to rent one home, that since has become the headquarters for Extended Hand. Currently the Extended Hand program has not received any grants, nor been certified as an alcohol education program through the county. Fanning is now seeking the funding and authority to continue the program through city, state, or federal agencies.

Fanning and AEP program Director David Goodkin layed the difficulty in establishing such an alcohol education program for women directly to "male chauvinism."

Goodkin explained it this way. "Historically the female public inebriant picked up by local police agencies has been transported to a medical facility, mainly Barr Pavilion at San Antonio Community Hospital. She remained at the hospital for 72-hours and then was sent home. The woman more than likely was not referred to any alcohol education program after initial treatment because — simply there just wasn't any for women. For the men there is the AEP and other programs, but absolutely none for women," said Goodkin.

Goodkin did point out that in 1973, one alcohol education program was established in West End, mainly for use by women alcoholics. It was called Casa De Fe, now known as Crossroad Project. He said, however, "at the first of the month all the persons at the Crossroad Project were men."

"What's happened," said Goodkin. "There is a great difference in the way men and women alcoholics are treated by the referring agencies. The women are more protected. The woman alcoholic is made less public."

Goodkin said until now, "It has just been our culture — male chauvinism, if you must."

This attitude, according to Goodkin, "has actually been disruptive to the female who needs some form of treatment for alcoholism just as her male counterpart does.

Fanning said for several weeks now he and others from the AEP have been contacting the various city officials in hopes of gaining support for Extended Hand. Fanning said he hoped to qualify the program through the county, and perhaps gain a grant to hire the necessary number of employees to bring it up to standard, and to improve the rented house so more women can be treated.

Fanning proposed that the women could be counseled during the day at the AEP center right along with the men. At night the women could retire to the Extended Hand home with continued counseling there.

Fanning estimated that it would take approximately $1,500 per month to operate the Extended Hand program the "way it should be operated." He said the program would need to hire a counselor and a female staff resident.

Fanning said we "are not asking for any handouts — we are willing to work for whatever we receive." Fanning pointed out that Extended Hand has already been incorporated as a non-profit, charitable institution through the State of California."

In what was later termed the turning point in the Civil War, Gen. George Meade's Union forces defeated the Confederates under Robert E. Lee in 1863 at Gettysburg, Pa.

Pomona included in med. program

Grants from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation of New Jersey will make it possible for every prospective mother in Los Angeles County to obtain the best available care for herself and her baby.

The grants will support a national program to reduce risk for mother and child in the prenatal period — months before and after birth.

Eight regions, including San Gabriel region which takes in Pomona, have been selected for the program.

The Central region, including East Los Angeles, is joined by the San Gabriel region and will be administered by USC through Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center. According to Dr. Edward J. Quilligan, chairman of the obstetrics and gynecology department at USC School of Medicine, the USC program has been awarded $2.2 million to support its activities for the five-year period of the grant. More than 40,000 babies are born in this area annually.

The Medical Center will not only provide advanced obstetrical care, but will be the focal point for educational activities and consultation on perinatal care.
